WAKE FOREST

COLLEGE
WINSTON-SALEM, N. C.

NINETEEN SIXTY-SIX

A college is never really any more than the people who inhabit it for a given time period. And while the faculty, administration and buildings give an institution structure and continuity, it is the students who give it life and who are, therefore, the most important residents of a college.

The story of Wake Forest in 1960 is the story of these students both in the plural as a student body and in the singular as a student, an athlete, or an enthusiast. A magnolia covered campus situated on a hill in west Winston provides the setting for this drama of students acting and interacting as

GROUPS AND INDIVIDUALS.

Among the most vivid impressions that Wake generates are those of biweekly chapel and the varied sights of the plaza which serves as both a geographic and social center for the campus.

Education is the obvious purpose of one's college venture, and at Wake it is a purpose that can be pursued in the broad setting of a liberal arts institution. Despite the increasing emphasis on scientific and specialized knowledge, Wake, consistent with its tradition and philosophy, continues in the assumption that a broad basis in the humanities is necessary for the true appreciation and application of any knowledge.

In line with this viewpoint is Wake's academic atmosphere where small classes and interested professors insure that the individual is not isolated in his attempts at

LEARNING.

Although there are multiple approaches to the subject of study, the outcome remains essentially the same.

There is much to be gained from college that does not come from the covers of a textbook or the confines of a classroom. For college not only provides a unique living situation with dorms and cafeterias, but it also subjects the individual to close contact with perhaps the widest assortment of people he will ever encounter.

Few Wake students fail to realize the opportunity inherent in the interim hours between classes and curfew that comprise that vital time reserved for LIVING.

Whether dining amid the clamor of the cafeteria, gossiping on the snack "pat" or frolicking in a midnight snowfall, Wake's students find a valuable part of their education contained in non-academic activities.

Facing constant pressure with its inevitable accompaniment of frayed nerves, students satisfy the necessity of diversion in a variety of ways. Social life as a group is experienced at athletic events, through Greek activities and in special campus-wide functions while quiet walks in Reynolda Gardens or a movie date answer to the more individual social needs.

Friday comes, and the face and feeling of the campus are transformed as students temporarily turn aside from working to PLAYING.

The outlets for diversion at Wake are manifold and are symbolized not only by the lighted signs of local nightspots but also by the lights of more infrequent events such as the Dixie Classic Fair.

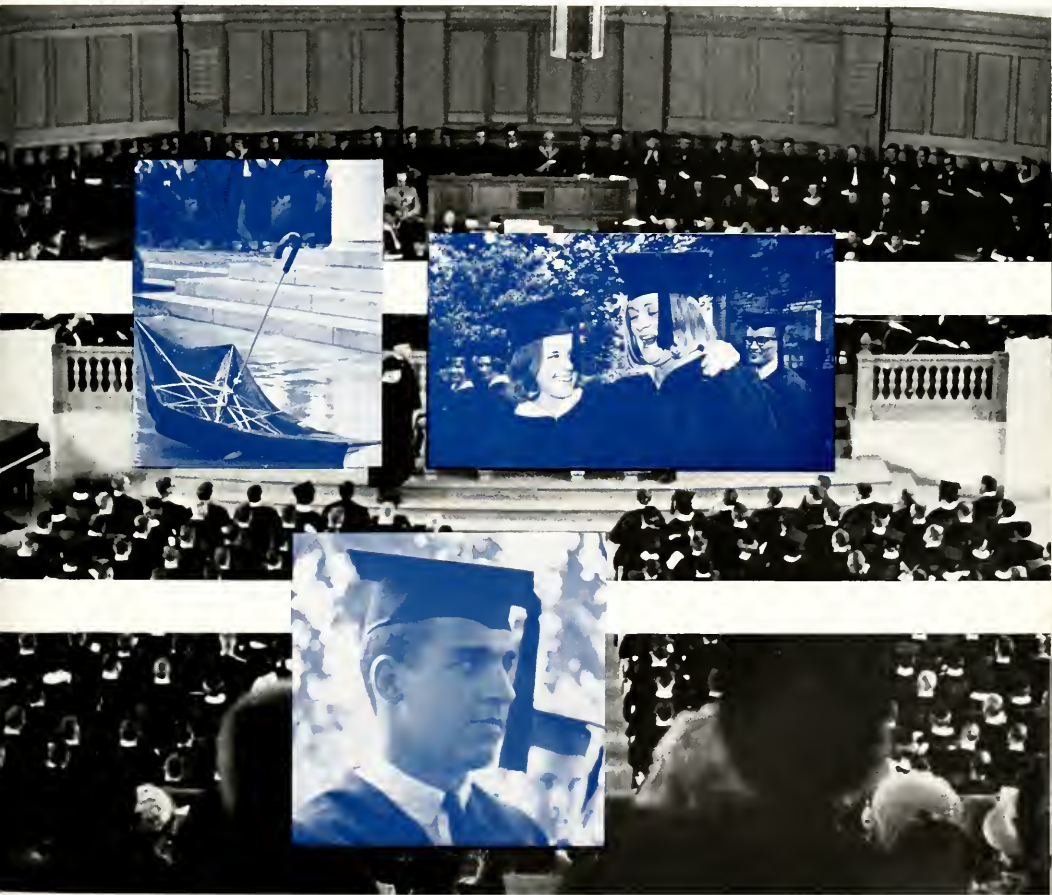

Underlying all the aspects, whether academic, social or spiritual which compose life at Wake Forest is one characteristic which though obvious and simple yields the real uniqueness of the college experience. This common trait is the opportunity for self development and expansion which are inherent in the situations the student encounters. It is this trait which makes the story of Wake Forest, in the final analysis, the story of a group of individuals

GROWING.

Although the tangible reward of a college career is bestowed at graduation, the true merit of one's four years at Wake remains something each individual must assess for himself.

For the groups and individuals who have given Wake Forest life in '65-'66, this year is set apart in their experience by a unique series of EVENTS.

RETREAT SETS MOOD FOR YEAR

Camper Suzanne Bennette gets a helping hand as well as warm humor from Ed Christman, camp director.

Pre-school retreat provided hours for relaxation—and boat collisions—before the hectic orientation week.

A first glimpse at Wake Forest's religious tradition is annually presented to new students at the Interdenominational Council's rustic pre-school retreat. Held just before Orientation Week, the Retreat offers incoming and former students a period of introspection, discussion, and entertainment in preparation for the coming school year.

In the peaceful, pastoral atmosphere of Camp Hanes, students hear a variety of guest speakers present topics ranging from theology to campus life. This year, retreaters heard comments by Dr. Edwin Wilson, Dean of Wake Forest College, and by Sam Abernathy, co-worker of Martin Luther King. Carrying out the Retreat's theme of personal religious commitment, Dr. Sam Hill of UNC spoke on "Christianity as a Style of Life." Open-air communion and vesper services culminated the weekend of worship, study, and fun.

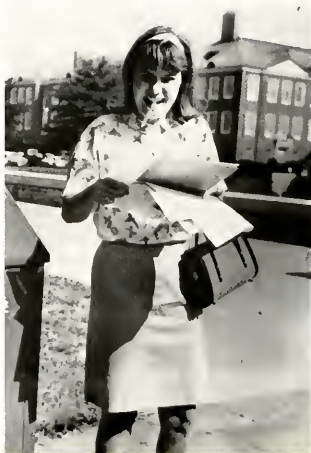

Registration transforms the library into a central processing station as students come to consult their advisors.

For the freshmen, the end of Orientation Week meant a final conference with an advisor, one last test, and the end of a seemingly endless schedule. For new and returning students alike, however, the end of one routine was only the prelude of another. The Wake Forest community moved from the intense quiet of its opening week into the tense frustration of Registration; and, as the last course change was made, the 2,955th identification picture taken, and the final text book bought, the Campus prepared itself for the finite routine of Fall Term, 1965.

Anne Davis finds the furor of registration more than enough to keep her hands full.

Among the many trials of orientation week that Freshmen encounter is the adjustment to crowded college closets.

OPENING WEEKS BRING TRADITIONAL CONFUSION AND FRUSTRATION

Two hundred pounds of luggage and twenty pounds of books make opening week a test in patience and physical fitness.

Many hours were spent producing such elaborate decorations as Alpha Phi Omega's giant deacon.

Both in dorm decorating and flag waving, the K.A.'s had a winning Homecoming spirit.

The Modern Folk Quartet ushered in the Homecoming weekend with an audience-thrilling combination of bizarre costuming and contemporary folk singing.

HOMEcoming A-GO-GO . . . WAKE FOREST STYLE

The finishing touch applied to dorm decorations on the Wake Forest campus was only the beginning of the festivities that marked Homecoming 1965. Settings for the activities ranged from the elegance of Graylyn Estate to the informality of Farmer's Market, and - whatever the surroundings—the mood was one of enthusiasm. Friday night's concert by the Modern Folk Quartet left Wake's Deacons eagerly anticipating the ensuing events of "Homecoming A Go Go."

Coach Bill Tate paced, applauded, and watched intently as his Deacon eleven battled the persistent Tigers.

ENTHUSIASM TYPIFIED HOMECOMING '65

After cheering the Deacon football squad throughout its hard-fought first half, the Homecoming crowd turned its attention to the halftime ceremonies and the crowning of Miss Demon Deacon. Sophomore Merley Glover, representing Kappa Sigma, was chosen over a field of 13 other beauties.

Coach Tate's eleven fought stubbornly through the second half, but were forced to succumb 10-7 to Maryland's Terrapins. The disappointment of defeat, however, failed to dampen the spirits of Wake Foresters. That night, the music of the Four Tops and Maurice Williams added a lively finishing touch to Homecoming '65.

The work of past months awaited only the energetic on-stage appearance of team and cheerleaders to signify the start of Homecoming '65.

Oblivious to the thousands who watch him, quarterback Ken Hauswald fires a pass past a Clemson defender.

Surprise and happiness highlight the face of Merley Glover, the new Miss Demon Deacon.

The electrifying sound of the Four Tops provided an unforgettable finale to the weekend's festivities.

The College Theater's production of "Camelot" used elaborate costuming, appropriate settings, and fine acting to transform the familiar bounds of the Arena Theater into the realm of King Arthur's court. Sell-out crowds attended each performance of the Lerner-Lowe musical, which relates the Medieval love-triangle of King Arthur, Queen Guinevere, and Sir Lancelot.

Under the direction of James Walton, seniors Susan Irby and Jim Dorr and sophomore Dennis Sayers rendered their finest acting of the season, while the strength of the supporting cast promised equal excellence in future productions.

Arthur stares transfixedly at his chalice, as he realizes his triangular predicament.

"They say there is not a happier spot for happy ever-aftering than here in Camelot."

Pellimore's "heart chaser."

A trouble-laden Arthur consults his counselor, Merlin.

An hour with grease paint and putty ages Ebbly Gaddy to the "youthening" two hundred-year-old Merlin.

COLLEGE THEATRE HIGHLIGHTS YEAR WITH CAMELOT PRODUCTION

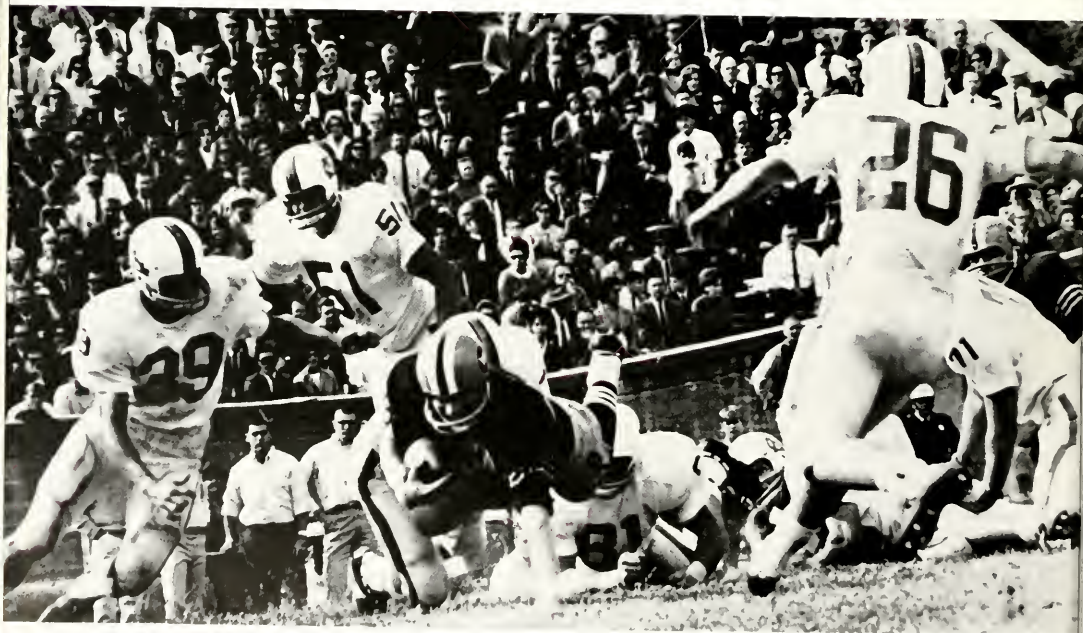

The first performance just ended, stars Susan Irby and Jim Darr sought the constructive criticism of director James Walton.

The thrill of beating Carolina found varied expressions from the cheerleaders' cycle-riding to the customary paper-marching of the dorms.

In a typical gesture of the day, a Deacon back charges through a host of bogged-down Tar Heels.

Parents mingle in an enjoyable morning of conversation and refreshments at the college-sponsored reception.

PARENTS JOIN IN CELEBRATING CAROLINA UPSET

A distinguished visitor of the weekend, Carolina's own Rameses VII, manages to have lunch despite admiring crowds.

A stolen ram and an upset victory over UNC may constitute many parents' lasting impression of Parents' Weekend 1965. Beyond the variety of festivities that were crowded into their short visit to Wake Forest, however, most parents will also remember their taste of what constitutes typical campus life for their sons and daughters.

Nearly 700 parents were in attendance Saturday morning to tour the college, listen in on classes, visit with school officials at a coffee hour and attend a lecture. After Wake's thrilling 12-10 defeat of Carolina, the girls' dormitories and men's fraternity sections held afternoon open houses. After a banquet that night, featuring speaker Ed Christman, a variety show in Wait Chapel, and Sunday morning church services, the parents left, feeling perhaps more closely a part of the Wake Forest community.

A fall visit to the campus reflected the many-sided talents of Dick Gregory, comedian and social critic.

CAMPUS ATTRACTS VARIETY OF RENOWNED SPEAKERS

College Union, the Institute of Literature, the chapel committee, and various departments were all groups instrumental in attracting noted speakers to the campus. Throughout the past year, the academic world of the students met challenge and stimulation in the remarks of several world-famous personalities.

In early fall the campus was given a preview of the year's excellent program of speakers with the appearance of Theodore C. Sorenson, special council to John F. Kennedy and author of the recent book, Kennedy. Comedian and social critic Dick Gregory, in a November visit to the campus, offered his reflections on the Negro image. The woman who inspired "The Sound of Music," Baroness Maria von Trapp, was equally inspiring in her account of the adventures of the famous Trapp Family Singers. Oregon's Senator Wayne Morse, a chief objector of the Viet Nam policy, spoke on "The United States: Its Image Around the World."

College Union president Larry Robinson converses with fellow Democrat Wayne Morse of Oregon at the reception held for Senator Morse after his Watt Chapel appearance.

Though her appearance had to be rescheduled to a later date, Baroness Maria Von Trapp proved she was well worth the waiting.

In conjunction with the release of his best-selling "Kennedy," Theodore S. Sorensen visited the campus to share some of his insights into the Kennedy era.

MIDWINTERS HIGHLIGHTS GREEKS' WINTER FESTIVITIES

The Shorelles and the Impacts set the Armory jumping at their afternoon concert.

From submergence in the enthusiasm of the crowd to quiet conversations in the corner, Midwinters offered a variety of outlets for one's particular mood.

Fraternities at Wake Forest College maintain the position of social pacesetters for the campus, with almost every weekend a busy one for the ten Greek organizations. Once or twice a year, the men call a halt to inter-fraternity rivalries and combine their efforts for a major Greek weekend. First semester's celebration, Midwinters, fell this year on December 4.

Although somewhat hampered by the deferred rush system, which prevented freshmen from attending, the fraternities showed no lack of representatives or enthusiasm. The IFC-sponsored affair began with a Saturday afternoon concert by the Shirelles. That night, the Greeks ushered in the Christmas season with a dance at the Armory featuring the Crystals.

A sure sign that Christmas was on its way—the APO's annual tree trimming in the main lounge.

CHRISTMAS IS... THE BIGGEST TREES... THE SMALLEST DOGS... THE HAPPIEST CHILDREN

Talent and ingenuity were as necessary as paper and glue for the door decorations that the girls' dorms annually don for Christmas open houses.

Christmas came, bringing to the campus the atmosphere of excitement and anticipation of the coming yuletide festivities. Each student sought his own method of expressing the holiday spirit and found an abundance of outlets in the community and on the campus. For some, Christmas meant an endless variety of concerts, lectures, and parties to attend; for others, Christmas was a vesper service, a night spent caroling, or a visit to a children's home.

A perfect Christmas gift for a girl of any age—a puppy from Lambda Chi Dog Day.

Christmas spirit relaxed housing rules as the dorms became a temporary refuge for newly purchased puppies.

Curiosity heightens to smiles as two orphans get the first glimpse of a new toy at the Student Government sponsored Christmas party for orphans.

With gifts under her arm, a cord claims a shy and somewhat awed friend for the SGA party.

Trees and decorations seemed to spring up everywhere, adding to the holiday spirit. Boys were admitted to the hallowed confines of the girls' dorms to view the coeds' mastery of door decorating.

Others preferred to cater to the younger set, as student body members sought to be a substitute Santa for Winston-Salem's underprivileged children. New toys may have meant a merry Christmas for the children, but their delighted expressions were enough to ensure a merrier holiday for their student hosts.

Freshman coeds proved that stocking hanging was not a tradition reserved for the very young as they transformed parlor wall into mantel.

CONCERT SERIES BALANCES CLASSICAL WITH JAZZ

Students seeking a break in the routine of winter studies found no lack of entertainment possibilities in the College Union Artist Series and the College Artist Series, headed by Dr. C. M. Allen. World-renowned performers visited the stage of Wait Chapel, presenting a variety of music that ranged from pop to classical and flamenco to jazz.

The first performer of the season was Soviet pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy, who thrilled the audience with his mastery of Bach, Beethoven, and Schubert. Another keyboard virtuoso, Dave Brubeck, played his quartet's distinctive style of creative jazz before a near-capacity crowd. Early February brought to campus the sounds of the Romero family, classical and flamenco guitarists. Classically trained pianist Peter Nero displayed his versatility in a program that combined the classical with pop and jazz.

Russian pianist Vladimir Ashkenazy, with stunning mastery, concluded his program with Beethoven's seldom-attempted Sonata (Opus 106) in B flat major, the "Hammerklavier."

The Romeros—Celestino, Glin, Pepe, Christiana—excited their audience with the epitome of classical flamenco guitar.

Pianist Peter Nivo captured attention not only with his humorous commentary but also with the classical technique he applied to unique jazz arrangements of popular tunes.

Dave Brubeck's Quartet "Takes Five" to hit a high note in this year's concert series.

For eligible and interested girls the official beginning of rush is signified by a visit to the Dean's office where they sign up and receive rush brochures.

SECOND SEMESTER STARTS OFF WITH A RUSH

Because of the adoption of a system of deferred rush, Wake Forest's fraternities, like her societies, did not open rush this year until the beginning of second semester. Both groups devoted first semester to sizing up, and in turn being evaluated by, the freshmen and new students. Academics played an important part in deciding the eligibility of candidates. Male students discovered they could not pledge without a minimum 1.75 QPR, while the standard for women was set at 2.0.

Those lucky enough to meet the requirements for rush were swept up in the stream of handshaking, name remembering, and small talk. After weeks of strenuous but stimulating rounds of parties and bull sessions the bids went out, bringing 132 Greek pledges and 75 society pledges.

Two weeks of hectic room rushing by the societies is concluded by formal parties where elaborately decorated recreation rooms are the setting for that final "sales pitch."

The center of any rush program, fraternity or society, is the long hours spent in room-to-room visits with prospects.

Although somewhat haggard, brothers still find the energy to extend that hand of friendship on pledge night which makes their exhaustion well worth the effort.

CU SKI WEEKEND OFFERS TEMPORARY RETREAT

One student skier yields to Mother Nature, demonstrating that the easiest way down the slope is not necessarily standing.

Students who found February becoming a growing monotony of tests and assignments discovered a welcomed, though temporary, diversion in Ski Weekend. Sponsored by the College Union, this year's vacation in the snow attracted thirty-three students who were willing to trade the mental rigors of the classroom for the physical trails of Blowing Rock's slopes.

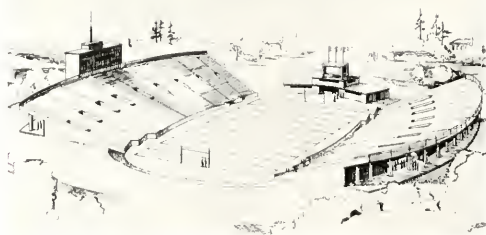

After a day spent matching skills against the challenges of the slopes, the skiers relaxed their stiffening muscles at a combo party that night in the lodge. Next day found them homeward bound, refreshed for classes, and eagerly anticipating another Ski Weekend.

Two students pause before heading out for a day of fun and relaxation at Blowing Rock.

STADIUM DRIVE EMBODIES PROGRESSIVE COLLEGE SPIRIT

Apathy is a term too often used to describe the Wake Forest student body's attitude toward campus activities. This year, students ran races, set off helium-filled balloons, and filled a wheelbarrow with money to prove that they are interested in their school's future.

In January, Wake Foresters received the news that plans were being formulated for a new football stadium. To support the drive, the students culminated a publicity-filled week of fund raising by wheeling $730 onto the floor at the halftime of the Wake-Duke game. Wake went on to defeat the Blue Devils—an assertion, perhaps, of an increasingly progressive, not apathetic, student attitude.

Fraternity men get on their mark to "go" for the stadium, as part of the marathon race staged to show student support.

Jim Rainey, chairman of the "Students for the Stadium" drive, presents the money-filled wheelbarrow to President Tribble during halftime of the Duke-WF game, which the Deacons went on to win in an overtime.

DERBY DAY ANNOUNCES ARRIVAL OF SPRING FEVER

To many people, spring is symbolized by fair weather, birds singing, and plants budding. For the typical Wake coed, however, spring is represented by a Sigma Chi derby. Early morning and late afternoon find demure campus society girls aiming jarring tackles at the Sigma Chi's in an attempt to capture their battered bowlers. Toward the end of the week a halt is called in derby-chasing so the societies and the hapless Sig pledges can plan strategies for the free-for-all known as Derby Day. The winner of the field events is decided partially by total points won and in part by the number of eggs and tomatoes thrown.

Though no points were awarded for this event, car piling proved to be one of the most popular sports of the afternoon.

Not even the trees were a safe haven from the derby-chasing society girls.

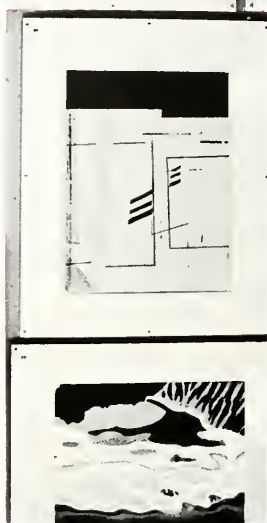

On the field and in the stream, societies demonstrated their never-say-die competitive spirit.

By the end of the afternoon, few doubted that it was the Sigma Chis, not the societies, who had really won Derby Day.

FINE ARTS EXPAND.

Typical of the traveling collections that the College Union brings to the campus was the February exhibit of Japanese screen prints.

A short trip across town enables interested Wake Foresters to take advantage of Salem College art classes.

Jan Gross (above) and Mark Robinson (below), both members of the Fine Arts Committee, are pictured with two recent additions to the permanent collection of contemporary work which their group is sponsoring.

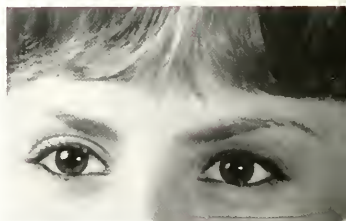

Although Wake Forest does not have an art department, a growing interest in fine arts has become increasingly evident among the students. While some students express their interest by taking art classes at Salem College, others are content to admire the traveling art exhibits brought to campus both by the College Union and the Piedmont University Center. Besides sponsoring monthly exhibits, the CU's Fine Arts Committee hopes to establish a representative, permanent collection of contemporary art which they started this past summer on a buying trip to New York.

Ten beauties shared the spotlight with the Billy May Orchestra and Roy Hamilton at the annual Magnolia Weekend Festivities. During the formal dance sponsored by the College Union, the Magnolia Queen and Maid of Honor, both selected by the entire student body, and the court, composed of class representatives, were presented.

On these and the succeeding two pages the Queen and her attendants are pictured in the lovely setting of Reynolda Gardens.

ACADEMICS

PRESIDENT SYMBOLIZES SPIRIT OF WAKE FOREST

President Harold W. Tribble has worked unceasingly for the college over the past several years, representing its interests in many areas and to many people. His office carries with it innumerable demands, which President Tribble, as scholar, educator, and administrator must constantly face.

In line with his vital decision making power, the president tries to maintain an awareness of the present problems and goals in relation to the need for future growth.

President of the College, Dr. Harold W. Tribble

Radiating a warm greeting even after a busy day of presidential duties, Dr. Tribble departs from Reynolda 211.

A deserving soldier, Dr. Tribble receives ROTC award at Parade Day in recognition of his dedication to the college.

Dean of the College, Edwin G. Wilson.

Dean of Women, Miss Lu Leake.

Assistant Dean, Robert Dyer.

ADMINISTRATORS FUNCTION AS PRESIDENT'S ADVISORS

The responsibility of governing and co-ordinating the diverse activities of Wake Forest College rests upon the shoulders of the administrative team. In addition to this, Wake Forest's administration directs the formulation of college policies in conjunction with the President's office.

Edwin G. Wilson fills a dual role as both Dean of the College and Chairman of the English Department. The Dean of Women, Lu Leake, has been especially instrumental in revamping policies for Women's Government. Other administrative co-ordinators are Robert Dyer serving as Assistant Dean of the College, Thomas Elmore, Dean of Students and an active member of the Education Department, and Mark Reece, Dean of Men and advisor of the College Union.

Dean of Men, Mark Reece.

Dean of Students, Thomas Elmore.

Director of Admissions, William Starling.

Acting Treasurer, John Willard; Acting Business Manager, James B. Cook, Jr.

News Bureau Director, Russell Brantley; Sports Publicity Director, Marvin Francis.

DIRECTORS PERFORM VITAL SERVICES

Conducting many of the basic daily operations of the college, Wake's directors fill vital positions. Bill Starling selects Wake's student body, Henry Garrity supervises alumni affairs, while Russell Brantley and Skeeter Francis publicize Wake Forest activities. John Willard and Jim Cook watch over Wake's finances, and Grady Patterson mans the busy post of registrar. Colonel Reed is in charge of job placement and Chaplain Hollingsworth counsels in many student affairs. Dormitories and grounds are supervised by Thomas Griffin and Harold Moore.

Registrar, Grady Patterson.

PE AND ROTC EMPHASIZE DISCIPLINE. EXERCISE

From drill meets to the Military Ball, from summer camp to the President's Review, ROTC cadets experience all the rigor and reward of life in an Army uniform. Individual excellence and development of leadership capacity is encouraged, and competition is high for the fifteen awards given each year to outstanding cadets. Boasting the only military library in the Third Army, Wake's military science department offers the cadet opportunity for expert training in every phase of an Army career.

The Physical Education department functions on the premise that training and development of the body is a vital facet of the Wake Forest student's education. Not only physical education majors, but all students reap the benefits of the widely varied program offered by the department, whether through the excitement of a volleyball game or the more serious study of anatomy and physiology.

Assembling a rifle is a rudimentary, but necessary part of cadet training.

POLITICAL SCIENCE FACULTY—Seated: D. Schoonmaker, H. Rhodes, J. Fleer, C. Richards, (Chairman). Standing: J. Reinhardt, R. Sears, C. Moses, J. Anderson.

SOCIOLOGY. POLITICAL SCIENCE RUN GAMUT FROM CULTURES TO CAMPAIGNS

The sociologist's study of man and his culture encompasses many things: ancient Indian pottery at the Yadkin River; the relationship between church, community, and industry in a North Carolina town; and even so local a subject as student attitudes toward fraternity membership. Sociology majors also have an opportunity to work directly with their chosen subject through volunteer social work in East Winston. Visiting professor of Asian studies, Dr. Hün Aung, provided the student with a face-to-face opportunity to learn about a particular foreign culture, different from his own, and to relate this information to his findings about man in general.

Man is not only a social but also a political animal, and the political science department studies man's actions from this vantage point. The courses tracing the theoretical development of the science of politics are complemented by others dealing with the application of these theories in local, national, and international arenas. Thus students can study the political man from the heights of Plato down to the local "grass-roots" level.

Proving that students are not the only ones with out-of-classroom work, Dr. H. Rhodes labors over his manuscript examining major political movements in the twentieth century.

HISTORY FACULTY—Row one: P. Perry, T. Mullen, D. Smiley, J. Hendricks, R. Zuber. Row two: F. Clonts, B. Gokhale, W. Years, M. Berthrong, H. Stroup (Chairman), J. Barefield. Row three: J. McDowell, R. Gregory, J. Smith, R. Cain, R. Barnett.

Professor of Asian Studies Dr. B. G. Gokhale was frequently asked to discuss his controversial specialty by various campus organizations.

An education never ends, and professors such as Dr. J. Barefield of the History Department remain continual visitors to the library.

DEPARTMENTS' SIZE REFLECTS ROLE OF LIBERAL ARTS

The vital role of English and history in a liberal arts education is evidenced by the prominent places these departments hold at Wake. Fully realizing the necessity of a knowledge of man's background, the departments attempt to relate this past to man's present and future. The vitality of the English program was shown this year not only in revisions of the departmental honors course but also in the lively lecture series conducted.

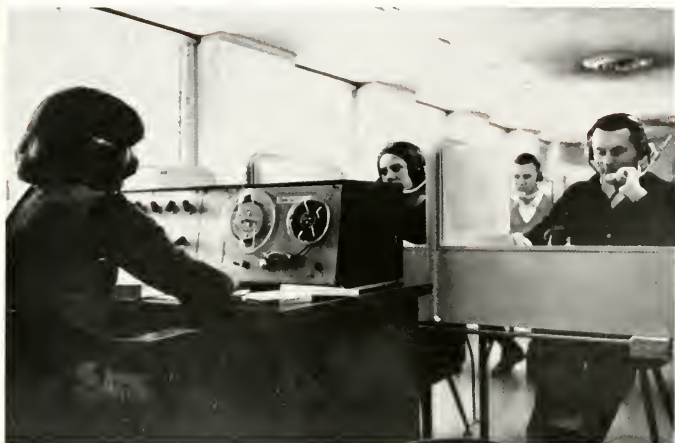

Down to a more factual orientation, the history student benefited from a variety of historical viewpoints through such professors as Dr. Htin Aung, visiting professor from the University of Rangoon and Dr. James McDowell, a new professor who is a specialist in Modern German History.

GERMAN FACULTY: Seated: G. Anglin, J. O Flaherty (Chairman), W. Sanders. Standing: R. Fraser, P. Fisher.

Although international communication is a much discussed yet somewhat idealistic hope, it is nonetheless one which becomes increasingly realized by the study of different languages and cultures. Probably no other field offers so effectively the broadening experience that comes from direct contact with other cultures. Wake Forest provides a wide variety of courses ranging from the study of ancient Roman civilization to the modern philosophies of Nietzsche or Camus. Recognized by officials of the Experiment in International Living as one of the two best participating schools in the country, Wake has for several years entertained foreign groups on the campus. To bring students closer to the people whose language they study, departments provide foreign films, lectures by noted authorities, as well as an active foreign exchange program.

RELIGION FACULTY— R. Dyer, W. Angeli, C. Mitchell, C. Talbert, D. Via, G. Bryan, P. Tribble, G. Griffin (Chairman).

FACULTY ACCOMPLISHMENTS IN RELIGION, PHILOSOPHY

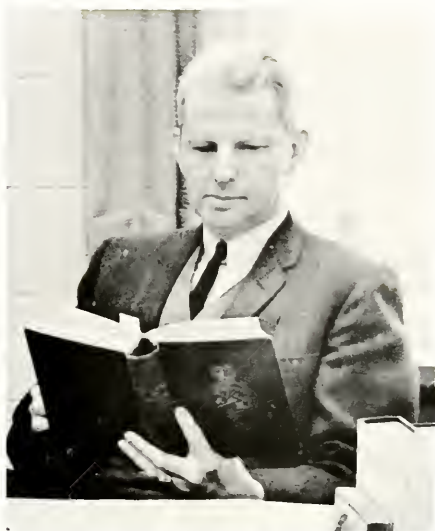

Dr. Phillip Hamrick examines pottery he helped excavate on his full-term archaeological trip to Bab ed-Dha, Palestine.

Most Wake students entering their first religion class are surprised and pleased to find their course of study quite different from the "Sunday School" atmosphere they had expected. The Wake Forest religion department, one of the finest in the South, offers the student a challenge in religious learning and a chance to revitalize his faith on a firm intellectual foundation. Students of religion have an opportunity to learn about all phases of religious thought and experience—from research excavation in Palestine to the role of Christianity in the modern-day world. Members of the faculty have earned wide acclaim for achievements in their chosen field: Dr. Via recently completed a year of research work at Duke under the Ford Foundation, and Dr. Phyllis Tribble was recipient of one of the 1966 awards for "Woman of the Year" for her notable contribution to society.

The pervasive influence of Plato and Aristotle is felt by students in the philosophy department. The timeless search for truth and beauty and an evaluation of the universe beyond factual observation have their beginnings in a third floor room filled with paintings and dated desks which set it apart from the ordinary classroom. In this atmosphere and under the tutelage of a dedicated faculty, students probe the minds of great thinkers, both ancient and modern.

In courses ranging from Aristotle to the Philosophy of Religion and from Logic to Ethics, independent thought and research are encouraged and aided by a four thousand volume library. An enrichment to the total philosophy program are guest lecturers and visiting professors such as Vergilius T. A. Fern, scholar and philosopher who taught here in the fall.

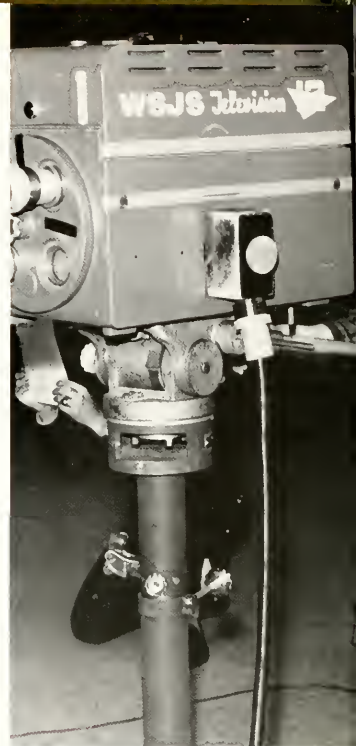

Dr. Helm contemplates Spencer's "Principles of Ethics" in preparation for his upcoming book on the thought of major British philosophers.

PHILOSOPHY FACULTY—R.

MUSIC FACULTY: M. Halpern, C. Giles, G. Kalter, T. McDonald (Chairman), L. Harris, C. Huber, P. Robinson.

COMMUNICATION IS TOPIC OF MUSIC. SPEECH

Aspiring pianists receive critical instruction from Mr. Giles.

The music department at Wake Forest is not large, yet it makes indispensable contributions to campus life. The music groups engage in activities from adding enjoyment to chapel programs to creating enthusiasm at athletic events. Courses ranging from theory and method to voice and instrumental instruction give Wake's students a firm foundation in the language of music.

In the Wake Forest speech department, the student discovers that effective communication is an avenue to success in the areas of public speaking, debate, theater, radio, and television as well as in everyday conversation. Extensive extracurricular activity and projects such as a communications seminar for North Carolina high school teachers create interest and give students practical experience in the fields of communications.

Introductory Psychology students are required to serve as subjects in experiments ranging from nonsense syllables to eyelid conditioning.

NATURAL SCIENCES EXPLORE MAN'S RELATION TO LOWER ANIMALS

Study and practice are the emphasis in Winston Hall, which houses the biology and psychology departments. In the field of biology, highly specialized areas are delved into by a thirteen-member faculty and those students who are interested in going beyond the introductory level.

Twelve full-time graduate students in the biology department and eleven in the psychology department are evidence of spirited progress and development. Graduate study is conducted according to a research-oriented program.

A new and quite successful undertaking for both departments this year was the seminar program initiated in order to expose students to prominent men in specialized fields of study, and to provide students in both departments with a broader view of their field of study.

BIOLOGY FACULTY—Seated: J. McDonald, J. Dimmick, W. Flory, C. Allen, J. Davis, E. Cocke (Chairman). Standing: A. Olive, R. Wyatt, D. Hein, J. Esch, R. Sullivan, R. Amen, R. Higgins.

Dr. Flory, Babcock Professor of Botany, typifies the many professors engaged in research, teaching and publishing at Wake Forest.

Dr. J. Davis spends long hours at the microscope in his study of the effects of radiation on organisms.

Chemistry students, in their day-to-day study of matter and the changes it undergoes, are very much aware of the importance of chemistry in our modern world of scientific progress. Professors and students alike are involved in individual research dealing with such phenomena as X-ray defraction or non-aqueous acids. Seminars featuring specialists from other North Carolina universities help provide the science students with a well-rounded background for further study.

The six-member physics faculty also sponsors seminars in addition to regular class and laboratory studies. This year, physicists from as far away as England and Belgium have given lectures.

Study in these complex sciences has been facilitated this year by the new chemistry and physics library at Salem, opened by Dr. Berthrong, Director of Libraries at Wake Forest.

MATH DEPARTMENT ACQUIRES LIBRARY

Wake's math department offers a variety of courses not only for the major but also for those wishing to do elective work in math. Demand for math majors remains high, and eight o'clock computer courses seem well worth it to prospective employees. This year, in addition to nine full-time members of the staff and three part-time ones, the department was fortunate to have Dr. Brower, a visiting professor from Carolina, who helped build up the collection of math books in the library.

EDUCATION FACULTY—Seated: J. Memory (Chairman);
Standing: K. Pritchard, C. Dickens, T. Elmore, H. Preseren.

An avid tennis enthusiast, Dr. Memory can often be found on the courts.

EDUCATING FUTURE EDUCATORS

With educational methods continually changing over the entire country, Wake's education department has been steadily revising and improving its program with regard to teaching aids and techniques. The most significant department innovation and one that goes into effect next year is the switch to the block system in student teaching. Research was carried on by the department this year, particularly in educational psychology. Students this year took advantage of a well-stocked curriculum lab, and gained practical teaching experience not only through directed teaching, but also through exposure to situations at the Boys' Club and at the North Carolina Advancement School.

BUSINESS ADMINISTRATION FACULTY—Seated: L. Cook, H. Human, G. Rogers (Chairman), K. Scott, J. Owen. Standing: V. Wagstaff, R. Heath, O. Lewis, B. Hylton.

BUSINESS SCHOOL HAS PERVASIVE INFLUENCE

The School of Business Administration assumes not only the job of instructing students working toward a B.B.A. degree, but radiates its influence into high schools and businesses across the state. Currently, seminars have been held concerning basic economics for high school teachers, economics for businessmen, communications and business management. These programs are based on the department's feeling that one of the main purposes of education for anyone—student, teacher, or businessman—is to make the required adjustments to change and the problem it presents.

Expansion of the department and its offerings is evidenced by the acquisition of Professor of Business Economics, Hugh Himan, and the proposed addition of macro and microeconomic theory courses in next year's curriculum.

Many graduate students find private cubicles the only answer for the concentrated study they require.

POST GRADUATE OFFERINGS CONTINUE TO GROW

For the student who wants to carry his education past the undergraduate level, the Wake Forest Division of Graduate Studies offers opportunities for advancement in Biology, English, Psychology, Physics, Mathematics, and the newly launched Sociology and Anthropology program. Guided by Dr. Henry Stroupe, the young graduate division has been expanding yearly and sees both a greater quantity and quality of graduates coming to Wake each fall.

Under the leadership of Dean Carroll Weathers, Wake's aspiring barristers concentrate on legal contracts and courts, snack-shop coffee and cramming. A small but select group, these law students find that Wake offers a hard, but rewarding three years of study.

Individual research and initiative are vital to participants in the honors curriculum.

Occasionally the most stimulating moments for the honors students come in an impromptu discussion during a "break."

HONORS PROGRAM CHALLENGES GIFTED STUDENTS

Students exhibiting exceptional academic ability are offered the opportunity of supplementing their regular education through the interdisciplinary honors program. Emphasis in this program is placed upon individual research and initiative with faculty members serving as guides to the student in his quest for knowledge. In lower division honors students discuss the philosophies of famous thinkers such as Carl Jung, Saint Augustine, and Tolstoy, while in upper division they study more inclusive topics such as Utopian Societies.

The informal atmosphere of the round-table encourages active student participation in honors classes.

OMICRON DELTA KAPPA

Omicron Delta Kappa, national leadership honor society for college men, serves WFC by recognizing students outstanding in campus life. Not only does it contribute to the campus through the activities of its members, but every spring ODK sponsors a leadership conference for outstanding high school students across the state.

TASSELS

Tassels, the local honorary society for women, is composed of students who have shown the qualities of scholarship, character, and leadership in various phases of campus life. The society has both a fall and spring induction and assists ODK with the high school leadership conference.

TASSELS—Row one: S. Cox, S. Irby, N. Holmead, C. Claxon (President), S. Parker, S. Delap. Row two: M. Schmidt, F. Brvant, J. Shotwell, S. Bost, L. May, D. Westray.

ALPHA EPSILON DELTA— W. Burch, R. Shuman (President), L. Crawford, B. Schulenberg.

ALPHA EPSILON DELTA

Alpha Epsilon Delta, honorary pre-medical fraternity, includes a spring initiation and banquet among its many activities. This year a panel discussion was held with speakers from the faculty of Bowman Gray School of Medicine. In April a club member was sent to the national convention at Emory University in Atlanta, Georgia.

BETA BETA BETA

The purpose of Gamma Rho chapter of Beta Beta Beta, national honorary biology society, is to recognize members who have proven superior in their study of biological science. The scope of activities for this year ranged from exchange visits with the Tri-Beta club of Appalachia to a beach trip.

BETA BETA BETA— Row one: P. Clifton, B. Carter (Vice-president), Dr. R. L. Wyatt (Advisor), C. Dyckman (Secretary), S. Penley, C. Morris (President), W. Parrish, P. Moore, J. DELTA PHI ALPHA—Row one: B. Bradley (President), M. Smith (Secretary), A. Cheves, D. Creighton. Row two: N. Hobbs, R. McIver, Dr. Frazier (Advisor), M. Bradshaw.

DELTA PHI ALPHA

The chief project of Delta Phi Alpha, national honorary German fraternity is the publication of the Wake Forester Beiträge, a magazine which is composed of the writings of German students and whose purpose is to encourage the study of German language and culture on our campus. An annual book prize is given to the outstanding member of the club.

ETA SIGMA PHI

The national honorary classical language fraternity, Eta Sigma Phi, held a dinner in April for the initiation of new members. The club, whose primary function is to recognize outstanding students in classical language, continued to encourage the study of ancient civilizations.

GAMMA SIGMA EPSILON

Gamma Sigma Epsilon functions as an honorary fraternity for students of chemistry, and its officers work with the faculty to form an integrated program of training in chemistry for the club members. Lectures by scientists involved in both industry and education were sponsored by the group this year.

KAPPA MU EPSILON

Kappa Mu Epsilon incorporates students interested in the study and appreciation of math. This honorary fraternity held a faculty picnic in the spring and sponsored a number of programs throughout the year concerning the available careers offered to students of mathematics.

KAPPA MU EPSILON—Row one: R. Smith (President), B. Michaels (Vice-president), Y. Merritt (Secretary), J. Carr, M. Oakly, J. Shelhorse. Row two: M. Smith, S. Everett, L. Joines, K. Perry, H. Knight. Row three: E. Bradsher, J. Griffin, J. Marin, J. Blankner, L. May.

PHI ALPHA THETA

Membership in Phi Alpha Theta is extended to those students who have done superior work in history. During the District Meeting in April, members met with other chapters from North and South Carolina colleges. Speakers this year presented talks on various subjects such as graduate study in history.

PHI EPSILON KAPPA

Phi Epsilon Kappa, honorary physical education fraternity, began the school year by aiding in the administration of physical fitness tests to incoming freshman boys. The fraternity sponsored a student-faculty basketball game and the annual P. E. speech tournament held in the fall.

PHI EPSILON KAPPA—Row one: H. Barrow, T. Dodson, (Advisors); W. Edwards, (President), L. Duncan, J. Davis, J. Simeon, E. Barker, J. Shaw, T. Futch, J. Stallings. Row two: D. Ferezan, D. Penn, B. SCABBARD AND BLADE

The activities of the society of Scabbard and Blade included the annual Military Ball in conjunction with the Pershing Rifles, and various service projects in which members can exhibit leadership and responsibility. Men tapped for membership must possess the Five Star Qualities of loyalty, obedience, courage, honor and good-fellowship.

PERSHING RIFLES

As a part of their initiation into the club, Pershing Rifle pledges can be found with their white wooden rifles diligently guarding the women's dorms. The members of this group of outstanding ROTC cadets represent Wake Forest in drill team contests and provide the Color Guard for home athletic events.

PHI SIGMA IOTA

The theme of this year's programs presented by members of Phi Sigma Iota, honorary romance language fraternity, is the "Theater of the Absurd." One of the works studied by the group was Samuel Beckett's Waiting for Godot. Members of Phi Sigma Iota are elected on the basis of their academic achievement in the field of romance languages.

SPORTS

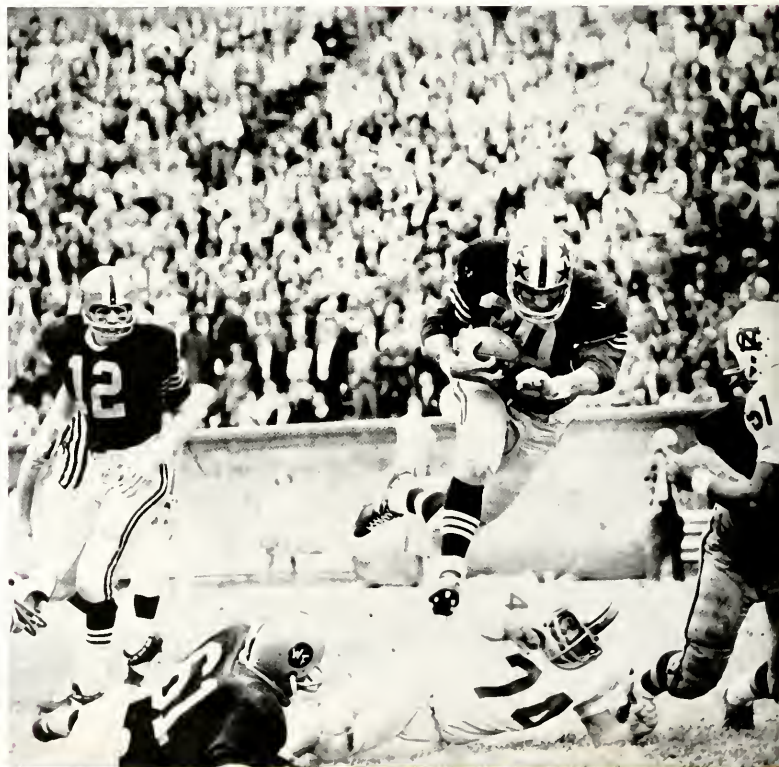

Although it is the team that usually gets credit for a victory, success would not be possible without the sustained efforts of the individual athletes who compose the team.

The aggressive tackling of Robert Grant was one of the keys to a rugged Wake defense.

A SEASON OF UPS, DOWNS AND INCHES

Joe Casazze's speed and agility earned him all ACC honors and helped Wake to a 12-10 win over North Carolina.

Excitement, upsets and letdowns made up the 1965 Wake Forest football season. Wins over Vanderbilt (7-0), North Carolina (12-10), and Memphis State (21-20) saw powerful Deacon potential materialize, while losses to Maryland (10-7) and North Carolina State (13-11) in the final minutes of play were crushing letdowns.

The Demon Deacons posted a 3-7 record for the season with all three victories coming from teams that had beaten Wake Forest the previous season. Wake's seven defeats, with the exceptions of South Carolina and Clemson, came from teams Wake had not played or had beaten last year.

The Deacons opened their season against Virginia Tech in the annual Harvest Bowl and quickly grabbed an early 3-0 lead. However, all that could be reaped from the contest was experience and a 12-3 loss.

Sophomore end Butch Henry was Wake's leading pass receiver, always coming through with a big play when needed.

Inches were as vital as yards in many games during the season.

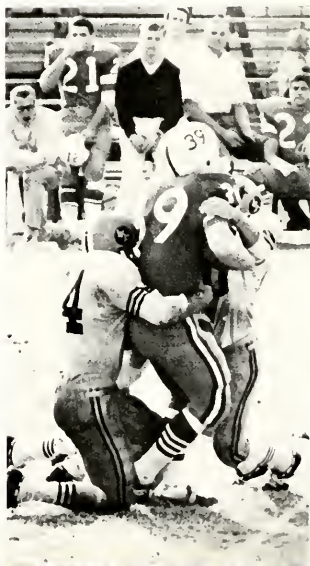

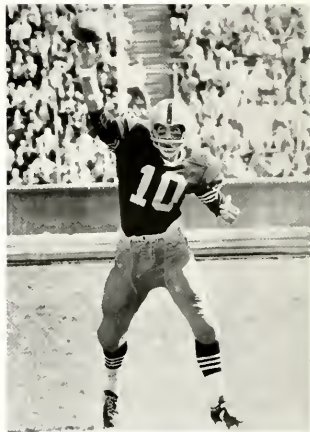

North Carolina State was next. Behind the running of Joe Carazo and Andy Heck and the passing of Ken Hauswald, Wake almost won. However, a last minute field goal gave the Wolfpack a 13-11 win.

Vanderbilt was the first home game. A fired up Wake eleven staged an upset victory, 7-0. The fine defensive playing of Robert Grant earned him the game's Most Valuable Player Award, and the consistent teamwork of both the offense and defense was outstanding.

With only five minutes actual playing experience in the previous season, Ken Hauswald took over as the Deacon's starting quarterback in September.

Gang tackling was upsetting to North Carolina in all respects.

Even when overworked, teamwork and determination made for a stiff defense.

Tenacious blocking spirited the Deacon's team effort against State.

Andy Heck was Wake's workhorse during the season, grinding out many valuable yards.

GOOD TEAMWORK ON THE FIELD NO MATTER
WHAT THE SCORE

Taking over the quarterback reins at midseason, Jon Wilson proved himself to be one of the most explosive quarterbacks in the ACC.

Behind good offensive blocking Joe Caraza scored the lone touchdown of the game against Vanderbilt.

A game and a season are measured many times in the yards not gained.

A FEW HARD EARNED VICTORIES

Homecoming saw Wake take on the Terrapins of Maryland. After gaining an early 7-3 lead, the Deacons were overpowered 10-7 in the fourth quarter. A night game with South Carolina the following week turned into a disastrous defeat. Wake played fine ball the first half, but the Gamecocks routed the Deacons during the second half 38-7.

Parents' Weekend brought the Deacons to a thrilling 12-10 victory over highly favored North Carolina. The song for the week was "Who's Got the Ram?," and the Deacons proved in eleven respects they had it! Reserve quarterback Jon Wilson came off the bench to lead the Deacons' passing for 172 yards. Halfback Joe Carazo also contributed heavily to the Wake victory, and end Butch Henry caught a pass that will long be remembered.

Eddie McKinney set a new Wake Forest football record for most field goals in a career, making five during his three years of play.

ASSISTANT COACHES Joe Popp, Beattie Feathers, Dick Anderson, Ken Karr, Bill Davis, Joe Madden.

Following Wake's stunning upset of Carolina, the Deacons played Clemson. The Tigers took an early lead in the game and never gave it up as they humbled Wake 26-13. A hot Florida State offense gave the Deacons their only shut-out for the season. Wake took a second-half scalping from the Seminoles 35-0, after trailing only 3-0 in the first half.

Future co-champion of the ACC, Duke, overpowered Wake Forest the following week. At Durham the Blue Devils smashed Wake 40-7.

Memphis State was the final game of the season. The Deacons made the most of State's fumbles and bad passing to grab an early 13-0 lead. Memphis State came roaring back late in the game, but when the final gun sounded Wake had tamed the Tigers 21-20.

Spirit and a strong handshake were qualities never lacking during the season.

Head coach Bill Tate kept himself abreast of every play and concentrated on keeping individual and team morale high.

YEAR OF CONTRAST ... A POROUS DEFENSE. YET AN ALL-AMERICAN ...

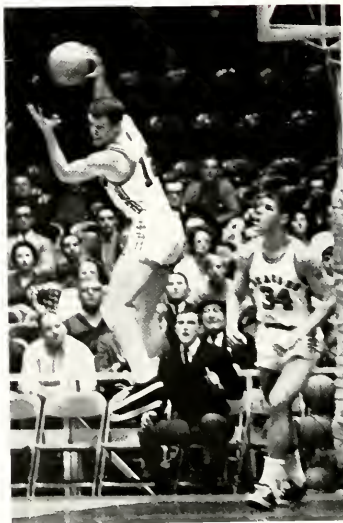

The Wake Forest Demon Deacons in 1965-66, though lacking an impressive won-lost record, did play an exciting brand of basketball. With Bob Leonard, Paul Long, and Jim Boshart averaging close to 65 points a game between them, the Deacons offered plenty of offensive basketball. The porous defense, however, allowed the opponents to outscore the Deacons in 18 of the 26 games.

In his first season as head coach, Jack Murdock sent his under-sized and outmanned Deacons against the best in the country—St. Joseph's, Duke, Cincinnati, Vanderbilt, and Ohio State all within a month's time. Although these games proved stunning defeats for Wake the gradual development of teamwork was evident.

Early in the season, the Deacons twice defeated the eventual Southern Conference champions, Davidson. In February the Deacons, gaining experience and maturity, played their best all-around basketball, losing squeakers to Clemson and Maryland while defeating South Carolina twice. In the final week of the season, sophomore David Stroupe and junior Bob Wills teamed with Leonard and Long to upset the nationally ranked Blue Devils from Duke 99-98 in overtime.

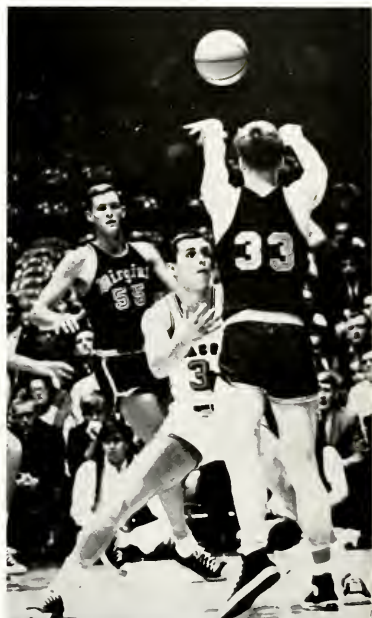

Captain Bob Leonard led the Deacons in rebounding this year despite his lack of height.

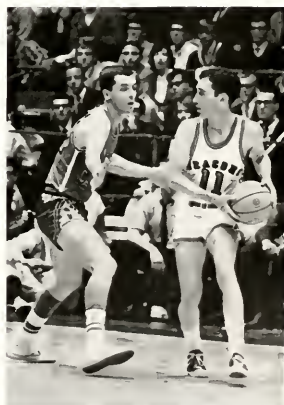

Paul Long was the other half of the L&L combination and led the team in scoring by averaging over 24 points a game.

Leonard shoots All-American form in the Deacon's win over nationally ranked Duke.

The fine defensive playing of Jim Boshart added much to this year's team.

"Sparkplug" Bill Joyner recharged the sputtering Deacon offense on numerous occasions.

While only a few Wake wins were spotlighted this year, teamwork flickered brightly toward the end of the season.

The Deacons throughout the year had some great moments—All Conference guards Paul Long and Bob Leonard throughout the season hitting fantastic shots from the floor and making lay-ups that no one could believe; the tremendous development of Dave Stroupe; the passing wizardry of Bill Joyner; the defensive tenacity of Bob Willis; the accurate 20-footers of Jim Boshart; and the quiet (and sometimes not so quiet) confidence and determination of Coach Jack Murdock.

Though a losing season, the season was not a loss. The development and progress of key young members of the team indicate that next year the Deacons will be fast, disciplined, and hungry for victories.

A CELLAR POSITION IN THE ACC. YET A WIN OVER DUKE . . .

Nothing, but nothing, could stop exuberant Deacon fans from carrying Coach Murdock and the team from the floor after the Duke victory.

Bob Wills and Jim Boshart double team in an effort to steal the ball.

An excited press interviews Long and Leonard after Wake's win over Duke.

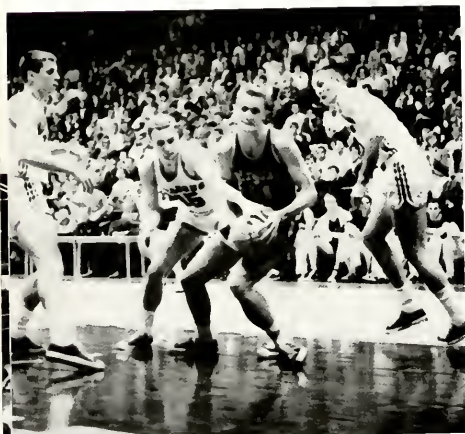

"Garbage Can" Paul Crinkley picked up numerous loose balls and put many through the basket for Wake this year.

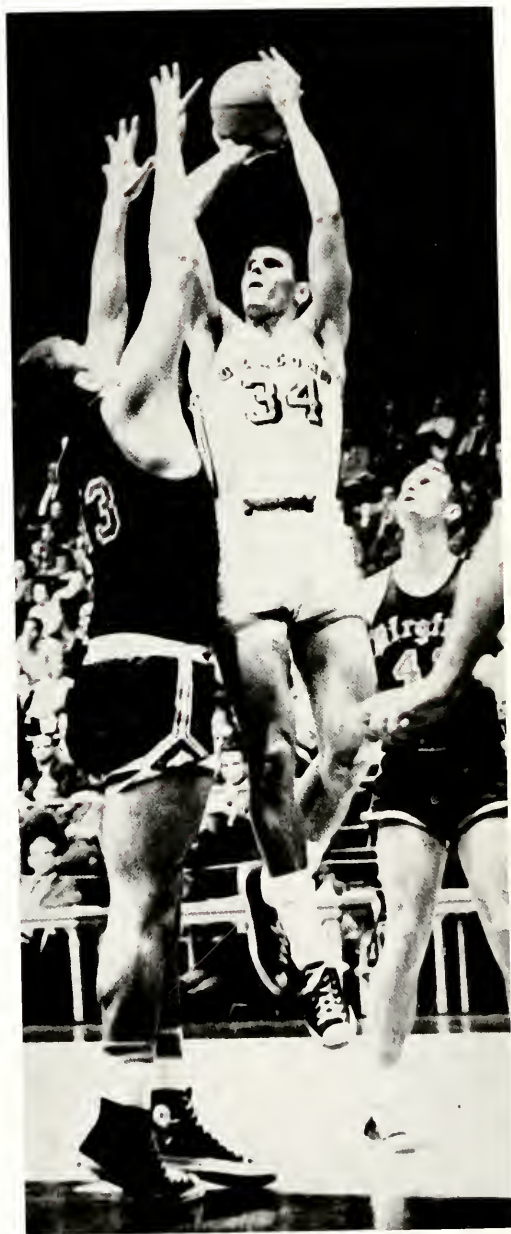

INDIVIDUAL EXPERIENCE. YET A YOUNG TEAM . . .

What the Deacons will lack, however, is number fifteen, Bob Leonard—All-Conference, All-American, the third leading scorer in Wake Forest basketball history swishing 1637 points in three varsity seasons. This Deacon was team captain, averaging over 23 points a game, and led the team in rebounding though only 6-3. He was a tremendous Deacon leader, truly earning the respect of the opposition, as well as his own teammates. Coach Murdock, and indeed the entire Wake Forest Student Body.

Stealing the ball came natural to Leonard as many hounded opponents learned only too late.

David Stroup developed steadily during the season and became one of the "big men" for the Deacons at the season's end.

TANKMEN TAKE FIFTH IN ACC

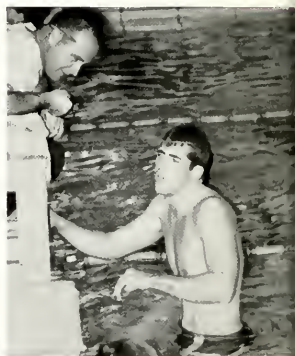

The beginning of the season seemed to spell only disaster for Wake Forest's tankmen this year. The first nine meets included only one victory, that being over Appalachian State. Near the end of the season, however, the team began to gel both physically and mentally. According to Coach Leo Ellison, the change in mental attitude was one of the primary reasons that the season ended with victories over Clemson, Duke, and William and Mary.

For the third consecutive year the team completed the season with a satisfying fifth place in the stiff competition of the ACC tournament. Amazing Drew Taylor, captain of the team, won his third ACC diving title and was undefeated throughout the season.

With lettermen returning to fill every position, Coach Jack Stallings anticipates a season that will overshadow last year's 14-15 record. The 1965 season which was the first losing season for any Deacon baseball team in 19 years, was a rebuilding year for Stallings. "Unpredictable" was perhaps the best word to describe the '65 squad which bounced back after losing six straight conference games and swept three straight games amassing thirty-two runs. Hitting and defense have been, for several years, the team's strength, but this year the team will primarily rely on experience and good pitching.

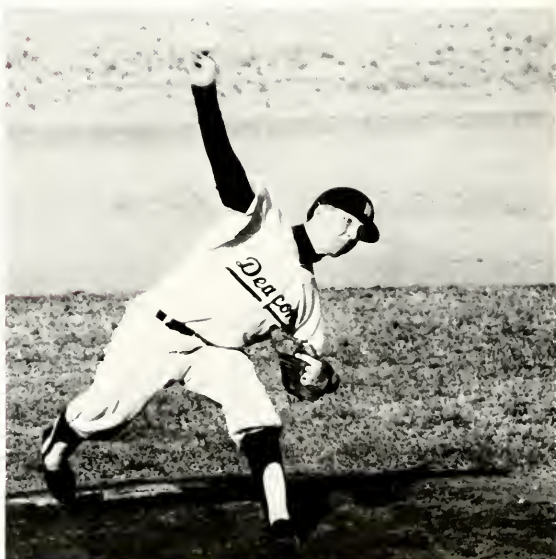

The ACC is well-balanced this year, but Coach Stallings contends the Deacon-squad will have a good chance to be in the middle of the title race.

Tom Cole tries to advance Gerald Boyles on a hit and run play.

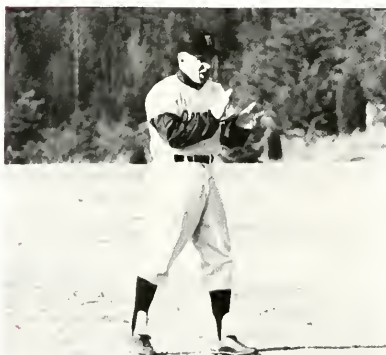

Heading the pitching staff is a "big three" of returning lettermen which consists of Paschal Renn, Steve Wrenn and Don Rich. These hurlers are expected to contribute heavily to the team's effort this year. Bill Molloy, last year's leading hitter has been shifted from third base and will play catcher this year. Tommy Cole, Randy London and Buddy Sizemore will anchor the outfield, while Gerald Boyles, Joe Kraus, and Sonny Swails will play the infield. The Deacs have fair speed and the Club's power will be provided by Cole, Nesbitt, Wrenn, and Molloy. On a good day Wake should be able to beat anybody.

LINKMEN REBUILD. HOPING TO UPHOLD PAST TRADITION

The Wake Forest duffers under the direction of Coach Jesse Haddock are looking for a fairly good campaign this season despite the loss of five three-time letter winners from last year's squad. Senior John Bucezek and junior Kent Kittle and David Kiser will spearhead this season's effort. The Deacons will have to do much work in order to uphold the traditions of past Wake golf teams. Haddock's chargers posted a 6-1 record in the Atlantic Coast Conference last spring, losing only to the University of Maryland. They also captured a fourth place in the Southern Intercollegiates. Kittle paced the Deacons by finishing in the top fifteen in this big event, shooting a 12-over-par 294.

BALANCE AND DEPTH AID TRACKMEN

Wake Forest leads the pack in the opening of the ACC Cross Country meet.

Wake Forest harriers completed the season with a mediocre 4-4 record and a fifth place finish in the ACC championship meet. The season however, had its highlights, and one of these was the emergence of Sophomore John Hodsdon as an accomplished runner. The fine running of Captain Al Viehman was also outstanding.

The season began slowly as the Deacs lost their first triangular meet 17-45 to Duke and 23-32 to N. C. State. However, victories over Davidson 19-40 and Virginia 24-32 followed, and the team began to show the talent Coach Jordan had predicted. During the remainder of the season Wake suffered losses to North Carolina and Virginia Tech while beating South Carolina and Clemson.

The Deacon cindermen completed the 1965 season with a disappointing 2-5 record. The two victories came in meets with Virginia and Virginia Tech.

However, this record does not show the sparkling performances of several outstanding Deacon trackmen. The individual performances of George Kahle, Al Viehman, Alan Head, Tom Fitch, and John Hodsdon on last year's squad makes this season's outlook much brighter.

Coach Jordan's men this year have more depth and he anticipates a well-balanced squad that "will not be an easy match for any team."

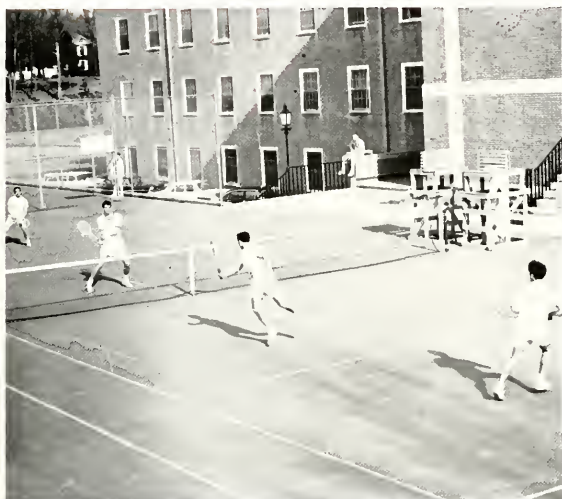

Track Captains George Kahle, Allen Head, and Lee Yancey warm up before the team's first meet.

FUTURE LOOKS BRIGHT FOR WAKE NETMEN

Jim Snyder battles Amherst opponent at the net.

Under the expert coaching of Jim Leighton, Wake netmen face the coming season with an optimistic spirit. The Deacons have a tough schedule, however, the team possesses depth that it has not had in previous seasons. Experience gained by last year's squad should pay off in more victories.

Last year's season was highlighted by victories over South Carolina (9-0) and North Carolina State (6-3). However, the overall record of the team was five wins and eleven defeats.

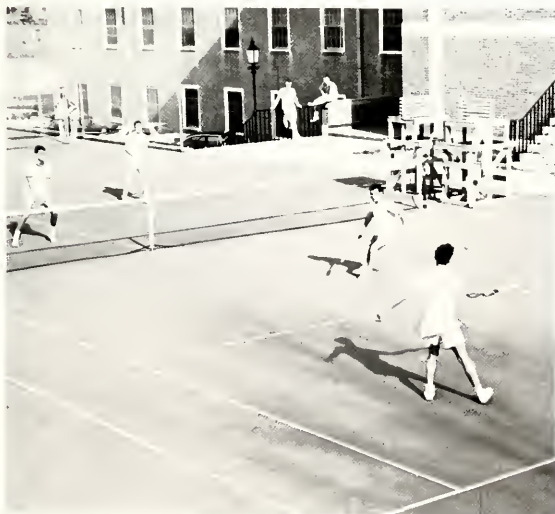

A powerful and effective serve helped to make tennis captain Rob Knapp one of the winningest netters on this year's squad.

Wake netters saw action from various angles this season.

Deacon spirit reached new peaks as the cheerleaders built human pyramids during basketball season.

BOUNCY BOOSTERS OF DEACON SPIRIT

Sparked on by head cheerleader Foy Martin, the Wake Forest cheerleaders added pep and enthusiasm to boost Deacon spirit this season.

Everything from sputtering motorcycles at the Carolina game to the building of human pyramids at the basketball games was tried by the never-tiring squad to maintain spirit. The selling of "Go Deacs" buttons and the distribution of toy footballs and basketballs at the games were other projects sponsored by the squad.

Demon Deacon Percy Bloxam provided additional excitement by battling everything from North Carolina State's Wolf to Duke's Blue Devil. In addition this sideline team sought to increase their services and extend Deacon spirit to out-of-state games.

When not entertaining visiting mascots, Demon Deacon Percy Bloxam helped keep the home fans happy.

From worry . . . to waiting . . . to winning . . . cheerleading is more than a mere "show" of a job.

Sig Eps get in early practice before the beginning of the intramural softball season.

Delta Sigma Phi just could not over-shoot PEK's basketball ability and went down in defeat 20-23.

PART TIME ATHLETES PUT TALENTS TO TEST

From fall until spring non-varsity athletes enjoy participation in numerous intramural sports. These activities are sponsored by the department of physical education. The main purpose of the program is to promote recreation, sportsmanship, participation, and competition among individual students and teams. Intramural sports include touch football, basketball, volleyball, handball, golf, tennis, badminton, horseshoes, and softball.

On a smaller scale, women students form teams within dorms and societies and compete in various sports with trophies being awarded to championship teams. A special feature of coed athletics is the field hockey competition with Salem College.

Phi Delta Phi's Defenders exploded in a superb passing game to win the Intramural football championship 25-0 over Theta Chi.

MONOGRAM CLUB MEN SHARE SOCIAL CENTER

Located in Huffman Dorm, the Monogram Club serves as a social center for athletes who have lettered in varsity competition. Facilities also include rooms in which senior members may reside. The club sponsors the annual pre-season Old Gold and Black basketball game and assumes much of the responsibility of organizing the Homecoming Queen Contest and halftime ceremony. Presenting Thanksgiving and Christmas food baskets to needy children is another project of the group.

STUDENT LIVING

An integral part of college life for the student occurs in the 132 hours a week spent outside the classroom.

SHARING AND SOCIALIZING CHARACTERIZE GIRLS' DORM LIVING

Ball-sessions, a television set, and a card table are essential for adequate dorm living.

A woman's work is never done—especially when she is a student.

Vegas vending machines take the place of home-cooking and the family refrigerator.

Dormitory closing hour instigates lingering goodbyes.

The sign-out card is the coed's pass into the non-dormitory world.

The dormitory life of a coed is a mirror image of her own home life in ways, but somehow there are certain inescapable differences—differences founded on the principles of group living. The ironing board is a possession to be shared with the dorm masses; a midnight snack acquired only by satisfying the material demands of the Vegas vending machines is quite unlike a visit to the familiar refrigerator. Privacy does not exist; a coed and her roommate compose the most private unit of dorm living, though in reality each girl is the roommate of every other girl on her hall. The coed lives in the midst of a continual bull-session; phone calls are shared with all who care to walk down the hall and listen, and a date is almost always begun and ended in the gregarious milling of a dormitory group. Yet, as a function of group living in her dormitory, the coed grows beyond herself and into the world of people.

Dormitory isolation knows only the slender limits of a telephone cord.

Social interaction in a typical rec room is a result of a television set plus togetherness.

DORM LIMITS ARE INCREASED BY REC ROOMS. PHONE CABLES

Rapt attention to study is the recreation room rule.

Wake Forest's coeds do not live in an isolated world consisting only of dormitory rooms, nor does social life end in hall parlors. Without exception, each evening brings visitors to the parlors and recreation rooms of the women's dormitories. And these visitors leave only when the ringing of a bell and blinking of lights signal closing hour. After lingering goodbyes, the male population departs, but only to the distance of a phone call.

GROUP LIVING PRINCIPLES PREVAIL AMONG MEN

The dormitory life of Wake Forest men almost entirely masks that of the Wake Forest man; individuality is retained, but most often only in its necessary relationship to group demands. A boy shaves when others in his suite leave a mirror available; he studies when others are quiet. Thinking great thoughts almost invariably necessitates escape from dorm interruptions. But, constant companionship offers such transient advantages as continual card games or the more profound advantages of lasting friendships.

Dorm study seeks the silence and seclusions of night's late hours.

A pack of cards and four boys yield a continual source of entertainment.

BOYS STRIVE TO RECONCILE INDIVIDUALITY WITH REQUIREMENTS OF DORM ROUTINE

Sometimes even the inanimate vending machines seem to make life difficult for the college man, and study never remedies dormitory woes. The eternal television set provides a distraction from routinized living, and the melody of a guitar perhaps dulls the harsh strains of college tribulations. Yet, even though dormitory life leads to desperate pleas for solitude and a desire for a life uncluttered by trying complications, there exists the strange phenomenon of an ecstatic dash back to campus after a vacation's brief absence from the crowded dorms.

The unpredictable antics of a vending machine bring frustration to inhabitants of the men's dormitories.

The warm days of spring send Wake Forest men seeking the sun.

Dorm conditions lend themselves to double-decker newspaper reading.

The strains of a guitar and study intermingle as boys attempt to meet the requirements of both classroom and leisure.

The Winston-Salem skyline replaces the crowded dorm for a few moments of contemplation.

Without the ten-of-hell, commuting students must rely on their own resources.

DAY STUDENTS FORM UNIQUE SECTOR OF COLLEGE COMMUNITY

An eight o'clock class, an alarm clock, and a car that will not start often begins a typical day in the double life of a day student. Upon arrival at Wake, he frequently must conduct a thorough search of the campus for a vacant parking space; but once settled in class, the commuting student becomes a real part of campus life.

In the Day Student Lounge, a bridge game persists in a fog of cigarette smoke while a few girls attempt to study before going home. Day ends with the weary walk to a car, often to discover a message from "Bunker" Hill on the windshield.

A familiar sight to all Wake students, "Bunker" can be a particularly painful problem for car-driving day students.

Car pools and commuting are common terms for Rona Kiser, Libbi Evans, and Mary Spencer who find varied ways to use their travel time.

The Day Student Lounge alternates as social, study, and sleep center for the female members of the day student community.

MARRIED STUDENTS FACE DUAL DEMANDS OF HOME AND CLASSROOM

Wake Forest's married students divide their time between classroom obligations and household chores, building a temporary home amidst textbooks and ringing bells which summon them to class. A cake to bake, the needs of a child, or an apartment to clean demand time away from study. Yet, the security and warmth of companionship reinforce the scholastic trial taking place in the bounds of trailer or apartment walls.

With books and baby in hand, this married student enjoys a walk in the snow to the Student Apartments.

The Chapel spire rises on the horizon as a constant reminder of higher education for the married students in the Student Trailer Park.

The student-mother must meet the persistent demands of both her child and study.

Margie Whitehurst finds baking a cake only a small part of her daily duties.

Somehow the unpleasant aspects of classroom assignments are soothed by togetherness.

John Avery, president of the MRC, addresses an Executive Committee Meeting.

The Men's Residence Council was organized this year with the purpose of improving the social and housing facilities of independent men. In trying to orient social life around the houses, work has been done with the College to acquire needed space. Included in this work was the elimination of freshmen dorms as such and providing in their place four full-scale residence houses which will enable freshmen to be integrated into the life of the college more quickly.

In addition to increased social facilities, next year a faculty house master will be provided for each house. He will have an office in the house and will be available for individual student counseling.

The Lamfers, Townsils and Doornats were among the colorful independent intramural teams.

Groundwork was laid and plans elaborated at the regular meetings of the MRC Executive Committee.

INDEPENDENTS UNITE TO FORM MEN'S RESIDENCE COUNCIL

Julie Davis, freshman, and Susan Vaught, sophomore, served as the MRC's candidates for homecoming queen.

The eye-catching red garters provided the theme for a dance which, along with several informal smokers were social events sponsored by the MRC.

INTER-SOCIETY COUNCIL—Top to Bottom: S. Bost, M. Schmidt, M. Zaiken, L. Barrick, S. Penley, M. Coble, S. Gambill, J. Lambert, J. Walsh, C. Sneed, J. Wurttenberger, J. Summer, K. Sutton, K. Schwartz, J. Herlocker.

In an attempt to keep present coed societies relatively small and still meet the needs of girls interested in the society program, the Inter-Society council was instrumental this year in chartering two new groups for girls. One of these, dubbed the Petals, was initiated for and by day students. The other, as yet nameless, will increase the existing on-campus clubs to six.

Participation in the 1966 March of Dimes Campaign and the College Union's Christmas Party, and assistance in serving at receptions for visiting speakers and performers were other society activities sponsored by the ISC. To highlight its year, rushing procedures were revamped effecting a smoother and more effective rush program.

Scotty Dunn, ISC president finds among her many duties the necessity of emphasizing a point.

GREEK COUNCILS FACE YEAR FULL OF CHANGES

The main objective of the 1965-1966 Interfraternity Council program was the initiation of a freshman deferred rush system. The purpose of the program was to encourage freshmen men to become better oriented with college academic life before joining one of the Greek social fraternities on campus. Under the leadership of president Clark Dillon and other I.F.C. officers the deferred rush system began in June, 1965 and continued through Feb. 1, 1966 at which time the formal rush period started.

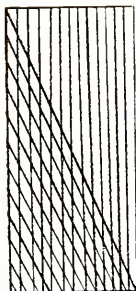

As always the two major I.F.C. functions, Mid-Winters in December and Greek Week in April, were two high spots of every Greek's yearly social life. Mid-Winters featured "The Crystals" while Greek Week featured athletic events, Greek sings, and a dance with music provided by "The Temptations" and "The Tams."

Leading the IFC in its first year of deferred rush, Clark Dillon found the trials of transition a full-time job.

ALPHA SIGMA PHI

Along the usual: The North-South football game (unusual: a South victory); the Apache party; the Black and White Formal; a successful beach weekend; dates from Charlotte, Duke, U.N.C.-G., New Jersey, Maryland, and even Wake Forest.

Along the unusual: Brothers and pledges took trips to the Mardi Gras; Sebring, a Pennsylvania party over semester break; and the basketball Eastern Regionals; victory in a touch football game; a pledge named Pledge; Fifty percent of the brothers pinned.

Along the outstanding: Four brothers are members of student government; championships in water polo, bowling, and volleyball; second places in tennis and swimming; participants in various varsity athletics.

Alpha Sigs' championship water polo team takes time out to celebrate their victory with chapter sweetheart, Donna May.

DELTA SIGMA PHI

Since its establishment on this campus in 1938, the Beta Lambda chapter of Delta Sigma Phi fraternity has been active in all fields of campus life.

Social highlights of the past year included: the Christmas party for a group of orphans held with the SOPH society, the formal Playboy party, and the Sailor's Ball at Myrtle Beach.

In athletics, the chapter was proud of its five brothers who were starters on the football team, and of its intramural basketball team which copped the fraternity championship.

With a substantial improvement in scholarship added, Delta Sigma Phi counts this year as one of its most successful.

KAPPA ALPHA

The KA's returned in the fall in eager anticipation of another great year. Almost immediately, Fitch dumped on Salem and Peggy Walker was elected Chapter Rose. The KA's took the Homecoming trophy again after 100% all-night effort. Practically every weekend Lizard managed to work himself into a tight spot. As spring approached, beards began to bloom and it was conclusively proven that 109ers are fighters, not lovers. The files will definitely be ready after the next round of quizzes! Dick Howie, senior of Monroe, was pinned to a Piper Cub. A red bug was found in front of the information desk. All in all, an interesting year for Kappa Alpha.

Brothers sport suits and smiles for the formal rush party.

KAPPA SIGMA

Responsibility and respect for others are concepts which have helped Kappa Sigma to attain prominence in campus and fraternity life. This year, "These were a few of our favorite things": Athletes who exalted the Kappa Sig name through excellence in Varsity competition. . . . Leaders who exemplified the Kappa Sig spirit in all campus organizations. . . . Scholars who made the Dean's List (and scholars who didn't). . . . A strong intramural program. . . . Our candidate, Merley Glover, being elected Homecoming Queen. . . . Week-ends at the mountains, beach and at Star and Crescent. . . . Another successful rush. . . . These things and many others have meant another outstanding year at the "Home of the Star and Crescent."

Kappa Sigs never lose their "cool" even in the extreme moments of decision during intramurals.

LAMBDA CHI ALPHA

All aboard for Lambda Chi Alpha 1965-66! After a $1200 renovating job, the physical features of Lambda Chi were greatly enhanced. The Drifters provided the entertainment for the best party Lambda Chi Alpha has ever had. Eighty-one dogs and two cats found new homes because of the efforts of Lambda Chi on its third annual "Dog Day." Brothers came through in the clutch by encouraging U.N.C.'s Ramases to become a "Deacon for a day." Formal meetings, parties, water balloons, "White Rose," women, "Dog Day," eighteen pledges, seminars—it's been a great year for the house of Lambda Chi.

PI KAPPA ALPHA

This was a big year for the Pikas, from the wild antics of Ed Parker and Don Smith at football games to the "high" flying ski trips in the mountains.

The "House that brotherhood built" continued its surge: In athletics, Pikas had champions in cross country and track. Brother Woody Baldwin thrilled a group of underprivileged children at our Christmas party. In rush, the Pikas pledged the highest number of freshmen on campus.

We continued our support of a foster child, Ethios Kalfakis, of Greece, and were first in the kickoff for the new stadium.

Through all these activities, Pika brothers reached a peak of closeness in 1965-66.

Brothers Karl Tutt and Robert Caldwell backed up the All-Pika choir at serenades.

SIGMA CHI

This year, as in the past, there were Sigs in nearly every campus activity; 17 brothers were varsity athletes, including Wake Forest's third highest all-time basketball scorer, Bob Leonard. Bob Sumner and Jerry Baker sat on the Honor Council and there were Sigs in the student legislature including Chip Cooper, Vice-President of the State Student Legislature at Raleigh for 1967.

The Sigs also experienced successful rush and social programs. Co-Rush Chairmen, Bruce Carter and Monty Hogewood, organized the rush program to give the fraternity an outstanding pledge class numbering 25. The social life was equally successful with numerous combo parties and of course, Derby Day. The climax and fitting end of the year was the Sweetheart Ball at the Tryon Seville at Ocean Drive, S. C.

"All fired up" can hardly describe the feelings of Sigma Chis at Derby Day.

SIGMA PHI EPSILON

The ever active Sig Eps' year was highlighted by Salemites, pinnings and plunges in Whitaker Park. Individual brothers stood out as Beverly shot down the Lone Ranger with silver bullets, Ron Jones inherited a transportation service, and Bullets Patton rode a pumpkin stem back from Salem.

Midwinters sneaked by as brother F.M. found tough footing on the stairs, house appropriations afforded Patton a new pair of pants, and Ron Smith supplied sixty-nine ounces of cool to the Spic.

As Vulture taught the fledglings to fly, the pledges exercised the canine corps and the black maria was reincarnated. It was an exciting year not soon to be forgotten by the Sig Eps.

SIGMA PI

Sigma Pi's in '65 were again active in all phases of fraternity and college life. Fall saw great enthusiasm among the brothers as they won their third consecutive second-place in football, slaved over homecoming decorations and ushered in a series of house parties.

Winter brought about Christmas parties for children and rush parties which netted them fifteen pledges. In spring, the sandlot men defended the Intramural Softball Championship and later spruced up to attend the annual Orchid Ball, a two-day event that gave the brothers their last big fling before finals.

THETA CHI

The Gamma Omicron chapter of Theta Chi fraternity, as in previous years, has had a balanced program of social, athletic and academic life. We sincerely believe that such balance is most essential to the development of individual character and an outstanding fraternity. Social highlights included a formal dance and a beach weekend. Athletically, the fraternity finished first in football and track and scored high in the all-campus trophy race. Theta Chi stressed academics more than ever and as a result was above the all men's average. We are proud of our outstanding pledge class and are assured that Theta Chi in the future will reach even greater heights.

After witnessing the A-Go-Go spectacle on their roof, Theta Chis and dates await the buses for the Homecoming game.

What is "Fideles"? . . . a very special sisterhood sharing activities varying from dinner in the Mag Room, to invading Lockhart's Happy House. As usual, we were dime beggars; and Mrs. Greason helped us trick and treat the faculty's children (who'd you say your Dad is, kid?). The game with the Lambda Chis which started our football season, serenades, five fraternity sweethearts, wedding bells, and Christmas parties for underprivileged children with the Kappa Sigs and Pikas were vital aspects of our year.

We thank Merley for adding several new trophies, Joy for heading the Virtue Patrol, and Pam for that extra "umph" in rush. Well, something must have impressed those rushees—take a look at that Pledge Class!

Fidele children Umstead and Glover stole the scene from Santa and the kids at the Christmas party with the Kappa Sig.

A Fidele favorite was numerous visits to the Follins' Happy House.

The things in our third year which helped make us Laurels: dress-fittings (50 girls with identical green dresses?), stuff-it-yourself pillow parties, feminine coordination in the Theta Chi football game, that fall serenade which ushered in a score of pinnings and engagements ("We like our girls to do that!"), 20 boisterous children in the Sig Ep house for Christmas, and rush and a top pledge class which sneaked in before spring. Our favorite family, the John-sons, marked the end of the second year of advising with a farewell party for the seniors, those same girls who grew from the ranks of Basement Bost-wick B to form a club which wants to "linger a little longer," but must say farewell.

Hey, gals, Coach Tate wants "you" for the varsity squad.

Laurels welcomed new faculty members in the fall with a get-acquainted tea.

Last Spring twenty-four enthusiastic girls "gave their pledge" to Les Socurs and soon found their time occupied by wrinkled blouses and dirty shoes. "Songs of triumph were raised" as sweatshirts and pledge pins arrived on time and the alumnae letter made its first appearance. Loretta, our chief con-artist, came through in true Les Socurs style and provided fountains, breadbaskets, tables, and lamps of dubious origin for our rush parties. Our "wondrous wave of glowing praise" glowed even brighter after the basketball and volleyball tournaments, derby day, and the fashion show. All the events of the past year have combined to add even more meaning to our society—Les Socurs, the sisters.

Les Soeurs and their dates dole out refreshments to one of the groups of children for which they gave parties this year.

Societies boosted school spirit by designing and posting colorful victory banners during the football and basketball season.

SOPH started the year off right with its fifteen "man" team smearing the Kappa Sig's in football. SOPHS were standouts in basketball with Wilt-the-Stilt Harrell, Flash Floyd, and Black-eyed Etchells starting.

The blue and white garter girls along with the Delta Sigs bought and wrapped Christmas presents for local children and then tried to entertain them. Boy, could they put down some steps!

Fun and laughter prevail as the year comes to an end with fifteen pledges becoming sisters, a delightfully damp car wash, Derby Day, and the Senior Banquet. The seniors say good-by and a very special thank-you to our singing sweetheart Charles Van Wagner.

Strings in '66 led by the epitome of Stringliness, "the Summer," found themselves raking leaves (and hopefully a few Q. P.'s) for the faculty, serenading the fraternities, enjoying football games, wiener roasts, and Christmas parties with the Sigma Chis, -and then there was Derby Day. . . .

At the Annual Alumnae Luncheon, Holda Lincherry, String of Strings, encouraged present sisters to be more daring by a tale of her excursion through the bookstore on a horse! Just to be fashionable, Strings sponsored Glamour Magazine's "Best Dressed Girl on Campus Contest" and then rushed to the Freshman dorm where they found an exciting group of Threads, Strings' pledges. Seniors may leave, but their memories will not. Allehman, Strings, Allehman.

ORGANIZATIONS

From the streets (trucking) to the center to the same reporter meeting his deadline, Wade's organizations receive their vital impetus from individual members.

COMMITTEES PROVIDE CORE OF LEGISLATIVE ACTION

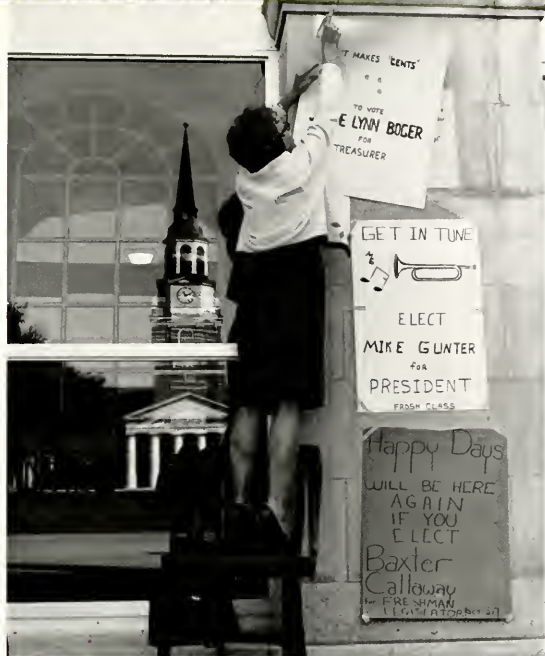

Though action in the legislature's bi-weekly sessions was usually no more animated than the floor proceedings in Congress, the group's major work, like that of the national body, was accomplished primarily in committees. Under the guidance of President Jerry Partney and Speaker Jim Rainey, legislative committees introduced a highly successful course evaluation program and began a study which, hopefully, will lead to the eventual abolition of Saturday classes. With the rise of an effective two-party political system, SG looks forward to increased student interest in its affairs.

Wake's efficient honor system allows students to concentrate on quizzes without the distracting presence of monitors. Bill Vernon, left, signs the pledge on his examination "blue book."

"PROFESSORLESS" QUIZZES MIRROR HONOR SYSTEM'S EFFECTIVENESS

One of the main objectives of Freshman Orientation is to teach incoming students the duties and privileges of Wake's honor system. This all-important instruction is the task of the Honor Council, which is elected yearly by the student body. The council, whose main purpose is to enforce the system, holds supper meetings throughout the year to discuss their problems and plans. Last year the group initiated an annual conclave of Honor Councils from Southeastern colleges and universities. Wake sent delegates to the second meeting at the University of Virginia this year.

Coed conduct offenses fall under the jurisdiction of the WGA Executive Committee while the Men's Judicial Board, in its second year, serves a comparable function for Wake's men.

Joe Sparks served as chairman of the Honor Council this year.

WGA HAS LIBERAL AWAKENING. WORKS TO UNIFY COEDS

This year's WGA meetings provided a forum for discussion of such issues as senior curfews and soliciting in the girls' dorms.

Being WGA President did not exempt Joy Brumbaugh from the ritual of "signing out."

Under the direction of President Joy Brumbaugh, the Woman's Government Association had one of its most successful years to date. The WGA worked not only as a judicial body, but as a unifying force for the coeds of Wake Forest. Included in its activities for this year were a Big Sister-Little Sister Picnic for freshmen and their upperclass "advisers" and a fund-raising auction. The executive committee was also to obtain several new concessions in the rules which govern coeds. Girls were allowed to wear shorts on Sundays (though not on the main campus); and since WGA members volunteered to "lock up" the dorm on Saturday night, senior coeds were allowed a 12:30 closing hour.

Housemothers were pleased with Bostwick dorm's newly redecorated formal parlor. They are Mesdames Turner, Eames, Overby, James, Madrey, and Holden.

COLLEGE UNION MACHINE GRINDS OUT "BEST YEAR YET"

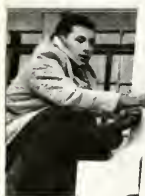

Wake students witnessed this year a dynamic growth in the campus influence of the College Union. Committee machinery functioned smoothly under the administration of President Larry Robinson, and the CU received a big boost in student support with the overwhelming approval of a raise in College Union dues.

CU provided students with entertainment in the form of weekly movies, combo parties, Homecoming and Magnolia weekends, and vacation trips like Ski Weekend. The College Union's cultural programs included outstanding lectures, concerts, and art exhibits.

CU President Larry Robinson ran the campus' biggest organization this year and still found time to serve as state chairman of the Young Democrats.

When staffers congregated at the HOWLER's Pub Row offices in September, they found a major part of the yearbook planned and layed out. During the summer the editor and art editor met with the engraver's representative in Chicago. Here, they had decided that HOWLER '66 would contain extensive art work and an unconventional basic design.

The tedious work of taking portrait pictures occupied most of the staff's time until mid-October, when the more difficult jobs of picture scheduling, copy writing, cropping and editing began in earnest. Despite a continual effort, February still found the office in pandemonium as staffers scurried about to beat the March 15th deadline.

When HOWLER finally went to press, relieved staff members returned to the realities of college life by trying to regain lost qp's. The break was to be short, however, for by April underclassmen were visiting the office again as planning for HOWLER '67 began.

OLD GOLD RECORDS WAKE'S "DRAMA OF LIFE"

Harold Hayes, editor of Esquire magazine, told Wake journalists that "all the drama of life" was theirs on the college campus to be captured on the pages of their publications. Old Gold and Black caught the spirit of that drama and conveyed it to the campus in weekly installments. In spite of a pre-Convention furor over the Student Legislature's Communist speaker resolution, the Baptist State Convention did not offer its usual fireworks. Exclusives for this year's Old Gold were the first co-editorship in the newspaper's history, a golden anniversary, and a special university issue. Though letters to the editor showed that not all readers agreed with OG&B policy, the paper's rapid disappearance from the information desk each Sunday night seemed to indicate its eager acceptance by the student body.

THE STUDENT DIVERSIFIES —
OFFERS SERIOUS DISCUSSION. "BOUNCY FUN"

Harold Hayes, editor of "Esquire" magazine, found time to talk with staff members of "The Student" during the E.E. Folk Journalism Workshop.

The Student added new color and life as its staff chased an elusive, if not impossible goal—to reach all segments of an increasingly diversified student body. In addition to short fiction, poetry, and essays, the magazine offered a variety of feature articles. In the course of the year's five issues, lively articles such as one called "The Plan" (how to succeed in college without really trying) and parodies such as a classic imitation of OG&B in honor of its Golden Anniversary balanced thoughtful explorations of such pertinent topics as activism, housing, student social life, academic freedom, and the arts at Wake Forest. The staff gave special attention to layout and technical problems in order to develop a well-organized publication with visual appeal.

Staffer Bob Stevens is briefed on his assignment by Business Manager Dixon Whitworth.

PUBLICATIONS BOARD INTRODUCES JOURNALISM WORKSHOP

The student Publications Board, which traditionally handles problems in the policies of the HOWLER, Old Gold and Black, and The Student and which nominates new editors and business managers to the Faculty Publications Committee, expanded its duties this year by introducing the first E. E. Folk Journalism Workshop. The two-day event was conducted in the hope of interesting more students in journalism and of improving the quality of Wake's publications. Such outstanding speakers as Harold Hayes, editor of Esquire magazine, and James J. Townsend, editor of Atlanta Magazine contributed greatly to the success of the first workshop.

DEBATERS PLACE THIRD IN ACC TOURNAMENT

Wake's traditionally superior debate team upheld its honor this year with the help of an unusually large percentage of freshman members. Arguing the national topic, "Resolved: Law enforcement agencies should be given more freedom in the investigation and prosecution of crime," the team's six varsity and seven novice debaters participated in over twenty-five tournaments in such widely dispersed cities as Nashville, Miami, Detroit, and Washington. The team also sent delegates to the DSR-1KA National Debate Tournament in Reno, Nevada. This year's deacon debaters placed third in the ACC tournament which was held here at Wake Forest.

ENLARGED STAFF EXPANDS WFDD COVERAGE IN STUDENT GOVERNMENT, PUBLIC RELATIONS

Station manager Bill Stracener unloads one of several new tape cartridges presented to WFDD by local radio station WJS.

The largest staff in WFDD history produced a wealth of innovations which made 1965-66 the most expansive year for the station since the addition of FM broadcasting in 1961. The "Voice of Wake Forest" lengthened its broadcasting hours and added several new programs. Included this year were live coverage of Student Legislature meetings, away Freshman football games and Varsity baseball games, and the broadcast of the annual Christmas Vesper Service. "Deaconlite Serenade" continued to be the most popular music show on campus. In the area of public relations, WFDD prepared a five-minute program, "This is Wake Forest," which was heard weekly over twenty-five commercial stations in North Carolina.

HUBER BRINGS BIG BAND TO DEACONLAND

An amazed crowd stood and cheered in disbelief when the marching Demon Deacon band, eighty-six strong, took the field at halftime of the first home football game. The group's growth from a meager thirty members three years ago seems phenomenal to everyone but its leader, Dr. Calvin Huber, who attributes the success to "hard work." Composer-director Huber has expanded his bands in an effort to provide an outlet for all types of musical enthusiasts. In addition to the marching Deacons, he oversees the activities of the pep band, stage band, concert band, ROTC band, and the orchestra.

CHOIR SERVES COLLEGE AS ROVING AMBASSADOR

Long practice hours were in large part responsible for the successes of the choirs.

Dr. Thane McDonald serves Wake in the dual capacity of choir director and head of the Music Department.

Members Pat Hunt and Mary Ann Sivency obviously find choir a pleasant part of college life.

Wake Forest's touring choir through its travels in North Carolina helped to extend the college's influence by person-to-person contact. The group, which is composed of thirty-six members of the chapel choir, presented Sunday concerts in various North Carolina cities and conducted an extended tour in April.

The larger chapel choir tried to keep students awake for at least the first few minutes of their bi-weekly chapel meeting. Working throughout the year, the group presented a full chapel program in early March, an annual Christmas Vesper Service, and a special concert at the Magnolia Festival.

Susan Irby is the only current member of Wake's highest dramatic society, Purple Masque.

COLLEGE THEATRE HAS YEAR OF INNOVATIONS

The presentation of an elaborate Broadway play, a modern opera, and an eighteenth century American melodrama highlighted the College Theatre's most diversified season in several years.

The theatre's major production of the year was Lerner and Loewe's Camelot, starring Susan Irby, Dennis Sayers, Jim Dorr and John Collins. Dr. Harold Tedford, in his new role as technical director, introduced a raised stage and a new show organ to the set. The play was a sellout for its entire run of ten nights.

The next play of the year was the first joint venture of the Drama and Music Departments in five years. Artist in residence Mrs. Ethel Kalter, Sarah Davis, Richard Brantley, Jim Dorr and Peter Bugel played the leading roles in the successful Christmas opera, Amahl and the Night Visitors.

Not as fortunate as its predecessors was the theatre's production of A. C. Mowatt's Fashion. Though it received excellent reviews, the morality melodrama was poorly attended because of its proximity to the first semester examination period. Leading parts were played by Donna Westray, Leland Cox, Brucie Daniels and Jim Eatman.

PATTERSON STREET PROJECT LEADS IN CHRISTIAN WITNESSING

Autograph seekers converge on Mr. Robert Short, who spoke to the BSU on his popular book, "The Gospel According to Peanuts."

In an attempt to better carry out their program of Christian discipleship, Baptist Student Union members assisted in work with underprivileged children throughout Winston-Salem. In the BSU's most significant program of the year, the Patterson Street Project, five energetic members learned about poverty first hand by living in an integrated slum area of the twin city.

Interdenominational cooperation continued to grow this year. The Newman Club, Westminster Fellowship, Wesley Foundation, and Episcopal Canterbury expanded their existing campus programs, and joined the BSU in sponsoring the annual interdenominational pre-school retreat.

Monthly supper meetings provided a time for BSU members to gather for fellowship and constructive discussions.

APO SERVES THE CAMPUS. SAVES THE ATTIC

Proceeds from APO's Ugly Man Contest were donated to the United Fund. Above, Brother Royce Givens introduces one of the "monsters" to chapel audience.

Alpha Phi Omega Service Fraternity continued to pace all campus groups in the quality and quantity of service rendered to Wake Forest. The brothers provided paperback books for Viet Nam, as well as cheaper textbooks for students through their campus book exchange. They prepared the essential Student-Faculty directory, and distributed editions of The Student to the student dormitories.

APO's greatest service to the campus in 1966, however, may prove to be the fraternity's contribution of free labor for the reopening of the Attic, student government's financially troubled pct project. Providing unselfish service to the campus, APO has made itself an indispensable part of Wake Forest.

CIRCLE K PROMOTES CAMPUS LEADERSHIP

The Wake Forest Circle "K" Club strives to provide a forum for campus leadership which cuts across social barriers, by including fraternity and independent men in its membership. Sponsored by the local Kiwanis Club and affiliated with Circle "K" International, the club's members include leaders in publications, Student government, judicial bodies, and religious and social organizations.

Meeting bi-weekly, the club regularly features a dinner session and an outstanding speaker. Some of this year's speakers were representatives of the U. S. Border Patrol and the Central Intelligence Agency, downtown businessmen, and members of the college faculty.

Dr. Gakhale of the Asian Studies Program was one of Circle K's outstanding speakers of the year.

ALPHA KAPPA PSI PROMOTES PROFESSIONAL INTEREST

Members relax at the house while participating in the ever popular collegiate sport of "tube watching."

Alpha Kappa Psi enjoys the distinction of being America's oldest and largest professional business fraternity. Wake Forest's Gamma Delta chapter selects new members each year by screening business majors for academic performance and professional interest in business.

To further develop members' interest in the business world, the fraternity sponsors field trips and seminars in commercial areas ranging from marketing and production to personnel and finance. Various speakers from the Winston-Salem area helped members to establish valuable business contacts. Alpha Kappa Psi's programs for this year included talks by Mr. John Stanton, program director of WTOB radio and Col. John Reed, director of the Wake Forest Placement Office.

DELTA SIGMA PI COMBINES FINANCE AND FUN

Delta Sigma Pi, professional business fraternity, sponsors a combined program of professional and social activity designed to further the study of business at Wake Forest College.

The Gamma Nu Chapter began both semesters this year with the rushing and pledging of many new members. Events throughout the year included industrial tours of the Wachovia building and the Lorillard and Reynolds Tobacco Companies, numerous professional speakers from Winston-Salem and vicinity, competition in the Intercollegiate Computerized Business Games, and participation in the Fancourt Seminar in Greensboro.

The chapter's Seventeenth Anniversary Party, an active competitive intramural season, and the annual Rose of Delta Sig Party rounded out the group's year socially.

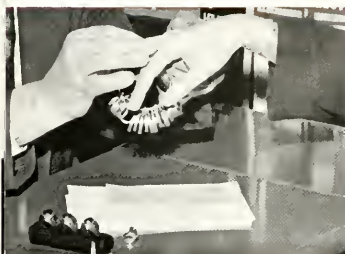

Brothers Buck Squires and John Garrity and dates enjoy one of Delta Sigma Pi's many parties.

CLASSES

From the freshman studying for his hand-book quiz; to the senior donning cap and gown, Wake Foresters retain a special class identity through their four years.

SENIORS

SENIORS SHARE EXPERIENCES. FOCUS ON FUTURE

Having filled the same classrooms, cafeteria, and chapel for four years, the seniors of 1966 emerged with a unity formed partially from having shared these routine experiences. Beyond the routine, however, were those singular events that helped forge a common bond, from the frustrated fight of the college for university status to thrilling athletic victories and even to occasional stolen rams.

And although seniors must busily plan for their futures in between continuing college demands, most of them manage to take time out for one last thoughtful and often sentimental look at their soon-to-be alma mater.

Colonel Reed, Director of Job Placement, introduces senior job seeker Lee Yancy to one of the many company recruiters who visited the campus during the year.

As graduation approaches, seniors begin to view the long awaited occasion more and more with mixed emotions.

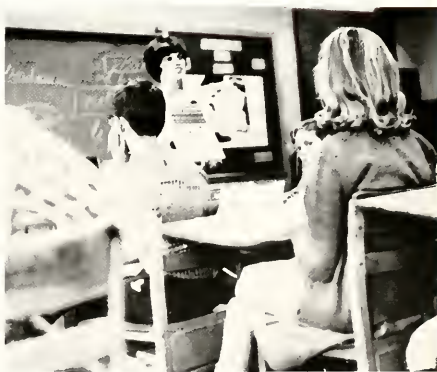

The frequent presence of military recruiters in Reynolda Lounge kept male seniors in mind of the fact that they would soon be leaving the safety of their 2-S classification.

Seniors find the opportunity of buying invitations among the first of many rituals that accompany receipt of their diplomas.

Showers literally descend upon the senior halls as graduation nears, while for many senior coeds the experience of practice teaching provides a preview of their future careers.

WHO'S WHO

Outstanding campus leaders from across the country are chosen annually by the publishers of Who's Who in American Colleges and Universities in acknowledgement of their service and achievement in all phases of student life. A combined student-faculty committee in each institution designates the corps of students who they feel qualify for such an honor. In addition, a publication listing the names of these seniors is distributed to many firms and to graduate schools, making known the work and accomplishments of these students.

Wake Forest's committee chose to recognize leaders in student government, fraternities, sports, religion, publications, and drama. It made a special effort to consider not only the more prominent student leaders, but those who worked so effectively behind the scenes as well.

PHI BETA KAPPA

Suzanne G. Bost, Richard E. Brantley, Jean E. Carr, Carol A. Claxon, Sharon L. Cox, Margaret A. Duncan, Anne J. Funderburk, Jimmy G. Harris, Allan B. Harvin, Cornelia F. Holmead, Mary L. Johnson, Edmund W. King, Helen H. Knight, Danny MacA. Loftin, Harding K. McDowell, Gerald A. Marin, Everette L. May, Jr., Rebecca A. Michaels, Sandra E. Parker, Jeanne E. Puder, Robert L. Shuman, Humbert G. Sullivan, Shela C. Turpin, William H. Ussery, James G. Williams, Judith A. Winchester, James D. Woolley.

Twenty-eight Wake Forest seniors achieved the nation's highest scholastic honor when named to membership in Phi Beta Kappa this year. From a class of five hundred and ninety-five, the new members represent that 4.7 per cent of the class who, chosen by the Phi Beta Kappa members of the faculty, have achieved at least a 2.3 quality point ratio and are considered to have broad cultural interest and scholarly achievement. Dr. Thomas Hanna, chairman of the department of Philosophy at the University of Florida, spoke at the April initiation.

JOE SPARKS

PAM BAIN

Varsity cheerleader, outstanding in school spirit.

OUTSTANDING SENIOR PERSONALITIES — 1966

ANNE HUNT

Senior class secretary, outstanding in student government.

From the ranks of the largest group ever to enter Wake Forest the class of '66 selected thirteen as their outstanding senior personalities. Chosen from a myriad of realms these six girls and seven boys through service of some kind have made a definite impression on the people they were associated with and the groups with which they worked.

Irrepressible spirit and individuality of service made these thirteen personalities outstanding members of the class of '66.

Many freshmen find Pre-School Retreat a welcome preview of Wake Forest.

For future lawyers the empty courtroom stands as an imposing symbol of their chosen profession.

LAW SCHOOL'S SIZE OFFERS UNIQUE ADVANTAGES

Barristers find the road to their law degree one paved with long hours of study.

The Wake Forest Law School seeks not only to train students in legal principles and doctrines but also to pursue scholarship in realization that it can only be achieved through hard work. The courses prepare the future lawyer to present legal propositions logically and analytically, and to move with confidence into positions of responsibility in communities throughout the nation.

Established as a department of Wake Forest College in 1894, the School has steadily grown and developed until it now has a faculty of eight full-time teachers. The School is unique in size, the smallness of it affording a closer relationship between student and professor. Comprehensive final examinations, length reports, briefs, and research studies are given by each professor, replacing quizzes prevalent in undergraduate studies.

Timberlake chapter of Phi Alpha Delta blends a social life with professional interests in its pursuit of legal excellence. Having completely redecorated the house, this year the brothers also enlarged the fraternity library.

For its work in a nationally recognized law enforcement support project conducted in co-operation with the Winston-Salem Police Department as well as a balanced social program, the chapter was selected outstanding chapter for districts thirteen and fourteen which cover a five state area.

Ruffin Inn Chapter of Phi Delta Phi observed another successful year. Fall gave them the Intramural Football Championship and for the third straight year they held the All-Independent Trophy.

An outstanding rush program was consummated in March with an initiation ceremony, presided over by the North Carolina Supreme Court, in Raleigh and a dance in Durham. Throughout the year the fraternity renovated its library, completing a set of North Carolina Reports and adding more horn books.

COMMUNITY

A city that encompasses both the historic landmarks of Old Salem and the visible signs of R. J. Reynolds' prosperity provides a stimulating setting for Wake's students.

Winston-Salem, home of the Good Guys, two hundred years of tradition and three thousand Deacons.

WINSTON OFFERS WAKE STIMULATING SETTING

Celebrating her bi-centennial year, the All-American city of Winston-Salem offers the Wake Forest student a variety of places and activities in which he can give vent to his moods, fulfill his needs, and stimulate his interests. The relaxed atmosphere and liquid charms of the TOG create a welcome place for withdrawal and easy conversation during the busy week. For date-nights, the rock and roll rhythms of such nightspots as the Bitter End invite and delight many of the twenty-five hundred Deacons who inhabit the Twin City for four years.

Apart from his own pleasures, the Wake Forest student's desire to give to as well as take from this community of trees and tobacco is gratified by service of many kinds. The Advancement School and the local Boy's Club offer opportunities for direct and rewarding contact with the city's children.

Students find companionship and release of tension in the many places for diversion in and around Winston.

Typical of various opportunities for students to serve the community is the work of these students at the Red Shield Boys' Club.

An important part of development of the self is answered by the many community churches.

The Moroccan cultural and historical traditions are brought to life each year by demonstrations such as this one of candle making.

COMMUNITY OF TREES AND TOBACCO

Strange faces become familiar friends as interaction with the community becomes ritualized. A hasty hamburger and fries from Chips or an afternoon of shopping downtown become routine and add an aura of belonging to our home away from home.

Churches and cultural centers present opportunities for the student to develop or cultivate a well-balanced personality. The reverence of the Moravian Christmas services and the quiet elegance of Old Salem are unforgettable experiences that made Winston-Salem home.

Community theaters added rocking chair seats and some good movies to help students occasionally forget their academic inadequacies.

The student's urge to spend endeavors him to the Winston-Salem merchants.

Need a quick meal? Wake's students when low on cash slave off starvation at one of Winston's many hamburger drive-ins.

do you know...

that you are graduating into one of the most promising areas of the nation? A recent urban research study forecasts "a linear city" for the 300 miles stretching through the industrial Carolinas. Here, in the 20,000 square miles served by Duke Power, scores of thriving towns connect busy cities. Research centers, colleges and universities, and hundreds of industries thrive. Here in the Carolinas Crescent, there is real challenge and opportunity. There is a place for you to fill, a job for you to do, in an exciting future that begins—right now.

The Howler wishes to recognize these friends of Wake Forest College:

Dr. E. De La Torre

Mr. I. E. Caryle

Dr. Ruth P. Henley

Mr. Fred S. Hutchins

Dr. Ruth O'Neal

Mr. J. Clifton Harper

I am a Western Union dolly gram

I'm six inches tall with funny ears and hair like straw.

Western Union will deliver me instead of a telegram, all dolled up in a pretty little box. Please send me to your special someone.

Happy Birthday

Cheer Up

Congratulations

"Prize-winningest" bandwagon—jump on it

Talk about lively newsrooms — ours "takes the prize," literally. As you can see, the corridor leading to the Journal and Sentinel newsroom is covered with certificates, each an award for excellence in every field from news reporting to features to photography to editorial writing. Responsible, interesting, professionally written content is what makes our newspapers so strong throughout our corner of the Tarheel State. It makes the Journal and Sentinel your ideal bandwagon when you want to cover North Carolina.

Our eleven-county area of coverage can be reached in no other publication.

You can't cover North Carolina without the

FREEDOM TO LEARN

Certainly one of the most precious privileges we enjoy in this free society is the right to learn . . . to choose the institution that best fits our needs and desires, and the subjects that interest us most.

To ask questions, and seek answers.

To read, study, and probe for the great truths.

And like most privileges, this one carries a responsibility . . . the responsibility to use it wisely.

Hanes Corporation congratulates you, the young men and women who are devoting important years of your lives to learning.

We know your lives will be richer for it, and your service to mankind more complete.

May each of you enjoy the heights of success in your chosen career.

TEXTILES... on the way UP!

Today's textile industry plays a modern, dynamic role in our lives through its continuing scientific research and development. Cone Mills is an important part of this great industry.

If you are interested in joining a progressive team of people engaged in production, administration, research and sales, come to see us or write our Industrial Relations Department.

VIEWING THE CAMPUS

From a yearbook editor's standpoint, viewing the campus is quite an awesome responsibility. Not only is it his job to record the events of the year, but also he must interpret these events. The burden of interpretation arises from the fact that there are so many views of the campus—as many views in fact as there are students. In this regard, it is hoped that the 1966 HOWLER captures enough of the manifold aspects of college life at Wake so that no view is completely neglected.

The book has focused on students in the relatively simple approach of their functioning as groups and individuals. Though the approach is simple, the object is lofty in that it is an attempt in some way to capture the essence of the college experience. The effectiveness with which this has been accomplished in the book, both as a present reconstruction and as a future remembrance of the year, will be the mark of the staff's success or failure.

It is, of course, hard to realize that this production began almost a year ago. And, considering the moments of serious doubt along the way, it is even harder to believe that there actually will be a 1966 HOWLER. Yet, despite the doubts and occasional headaches, this job has been a tremendously rewarding one from the initial planning session in Chicago, to the work of building a staff, to that feeling of satisfaction that came with the completion of each section.

Since an editor's job is essentially the compilation of the contributions of his staff, no letter is complete without that recognition of service above and beyond the call. My thanks especially to Faye for her unending patience as well as material contribution, to Jan for her long hours and "lost" semester vacation, to the student photographers who produced a remarkable 70 per cent of the pictures, and to the section editors who gave so generously of their time. My gratitude also to Ralph Van Dyke and Molly Flanders of Jahn & Ollier, the engravers, and to Joe Phelps of Edwards & Broughton, the printers, for their invaluable technical assistance.

In closing I would like to express my hope that if this book accomplishes any one thing, it at least will stir within every member of the 1966 Wake Forest College community at some time in the future a vivid, if fleeting, recollection of this year at Wake.
